WEATHERMAN SAYS WINTER NOW OFFICIAL

Weekend Sees Old Santa Turning Up Everywhere As Yule Season Nears

By Associated Press

The weekend has bowed to the Yule spirit with Santa Claus turning up everywhere—in the White House, in courtrooms, in orphanages, and in men's hearts.

He was both a messenger of joy and a bearer of sadness in this second year with Americans fighting in Korea. His bag of gifts bulged with hope, faith and sympathy.

The weatherman got in his two cents worth, saying that winter arrived officially at 11:01 a. m. Saturday—just as if it had been springlike all over a chilled-to-the-bone Midwest.

Chances of a white Christmas appeared good. More snow is expected Sunday in Ohio.

It is coming from farther west where mid-continent states were taking a fresh onslaught of the white stuff accompanied by near zero temperatures.

Transportation in many Midwest cities was tied up. Thousands of motorists were forced to abandon automobiles in the snow-clogged roads.

More than 250 persons were rescued Friday night from snow-stalled automobiles on highways about 45 miles southwest of Chicago.

Bus schedules as far west as Omaha were cancelled by most of the major bus lines operating out of Chicago.

Air line operations also were curtailed and trains were running behind normal schedules.

The mercury tumbled rapidly over the north central region as a fresh mass of frigid air from Northwestern Canada pushed across the border. Snow pelted areas from Central Minnesota eastward through Michigan.

At Pope Air Force Base, N. C., Santa arrived in a helicopter bringing mountains of presents to 1,000 orphans feted by the Ninth Air Force in what probably was North Carolina's biggest Christmas party.

In Washington, President Truman met with his cabinet and afterward Attorney General J. Howard McGrath told newsmen:

"We talked about Santa Claus and decided he was a pretty good fellow."

Santa's spirit seemed to be watching in a New York City courtroom where Federal Judge Samuel H. Kaufman freed a 19-year-old car thief, got him a job and gave him a ten dollar bill.

"It would bother my conscience to send you to jail just before Christmas," the judge told Encil Tennant, formerly of Homestead, Pa.

Vito Stamata had Santa in his heart, and six - year - old Ralph Marimario of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., probably thinks Stamata is Santa.

Stamata, a Lodi, N. J., building contractor, heard last Christmas that Ralph wrote Saint Nick to see if something could be done so he could walk. The boy was born without bones in his legs.

The contractor has spent more than $6,000 on operations in the last year. Friday Ralph walked for the first time, using artificial legs that replaced his boneless legs after amputations.

"Operation Reindeer," with Santa's spirit holding the reins, was underway at Keesler Air Force Base in Mississippi.

Special airplanes, trains and buses were pressed into service to get 20,000 airmen home for the holiday.

Kris Kringle was the guiding hand at another reunion of soldiers with their relatives in San Francisco, but there he brought the parents to their sons, wounded veterans of the Korean war.

More than a dozen relatives, chiefly from the Midwest, will spend the Yuletide in San Francisco thanks to the efforts of a San Francisco newspaper and Letterman hospital which acted as Santa's agents.

But Santa's efforts did not have a warm reception everywhere. In Elizabeth, N. J., vandals broke into Theodore Roosevelt school and stole or destroyed gifts for 115 children.

Illinois Pit Blow Yields 14 Bodies

Rescue Teams Work To Reach Men Far Below In Shaft

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Dec. 22—(AP)—Fear grew Saturday for the lives of 60 or more miners trapped by a mysterious explosion in the world's largest coal shaft mine which already has claimed a known death toll of 14.

It was the miner's last shift before Christmas.

Hours after the blast rescue workers still had not reached the entrapped miners some 500 feet below the earth and nearly four miles from the elevator shaft.

The mine superintendent, John R. Foster, placed the number of dead at "about 14" as dawn broke over a night of frantic efforts to reach the miners. He estimated 60 or more miners were unaccounted for.

As the death toll rose, the first of the bodies were brought to the frozen surface of the mine. They were taken to an improvised morgue in the junior high school here.

While only four bodies had been recovered, Foster reported that several other bodies had been seen in the mine, leading him to believe that "at least 14 are dead."

THE FOUR BODIES recovered were identified by Red Cross disaster workers as Joab Walton, West Frankfort; H. Summers, Benton; J. L Black, Carterville, and Howard Wall, West Frankfort.

Foster, in the face of the slow, tedious relief efforts, refused to abandon hope for the entombed miners but a state mine bureau examiner said:

"I'll tell you one thing. The men down there won't get out."

He was Deneen Taylor, 34, of Benton, a safety man for the state bureau. He said there was smoke and fire in the tunnel leading toward the miners. No one had heard any signal from them for hours.

Rescue workers centered their efforts on reaching the trapped men, hoping they might get to them before the air gets too bad.

The explosion, which shook the surrounding country with a deadened thud, came only an hour after the night shift had begun.

No one was able to explain what caused the explosion. Rescue teams reported smoldering fires, and fear was expressed that carbon mon-

Iron Curtain Shutters Yule Hopes For Fliers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—(AP)—The Iron Curtain has shuttered the lights of Christmas joy in the homes of four American airmen.

Communist Hungary, announced Friday it is going to try the four fliers on the ground they deliberately flew into Hungary "with the criminal intention of dropping spies."

The four fliers are Capt. Dave Henderson of Shawnee, Okla., Capt. John J. Swift of Glens Falls, N. Y., Sgt. James A. Elam of Kingsland, Ark., and Tech. Sgt. Jess A. Duff of Spokane, Wash.

At least two of the men—Swift and Duff—had been expected home for Christmas with their families until their twin-engined C-47 cargo plane was forced down in Hungary by Soviet fighter planes Nov. 19.

American officials said they got lost over Hungary while on a flight from Erding Airbase, Germany, to Belgrade, Yugoslavia, with supplies for the American embassy in Belgrade.

NEWS THEY will be tried stunned their families. Their kinfolk—and the U. S. State Department—had hoped the men would be released soon.

The families of the four men were quick to express their indignation and grief.

"Oh, my God," cried Mrs. Swift. "This is certainly a low blow."

She said she will try to have Christmas as usual for their 5-year-old daughter Leslie and 3-month-old son David.

But Mrs. James Duff, mother of the 31-year-old flight engineer on the plane, said, "We'll have no Christmas. Jess is certainly no spy. He's a mechanic."

In Shawnee, Okla., Capt. Henderson's sister, Mrs. Jimmy Barnwell, said her parents were "torn up" over the news of the impending trial.

The captain's father, D. H. Henderson, declared: "I don't see how they can be tried as spies. After all, they were in uniform and carrying out orders."

Mrs. King Leo Elam, mother of Sgt. Elam, took a dim view of her son's chances with a Communist court. "It would be something different if he could get a fair trial," she said in her Kingsland, Ark., home.

Commies Ponder Allied Proposal

MUNSAN, Dec. 22 — (AP)—United Nations negotiators have suggested an immediate exchange of sick and wounded war prisoners. The UN disclosed that 37,500 South Koreans they have held in prison have been reclassified and will be released.

The Communists said they would think over the exchange proposal.

The announcement that 37,500 South Korean civilians are to be freed from Allied prison camps came only a few hours after Red negotiators at Panmunjom demanded an explanation of why 44,529 names reported by the Red Cross were not included on the prisoner list turned over by the UN last Tuesday.

Rear Adm. R. E. Libby said the discrepancy between the UN list and that submitted by the Red Cross was due to a time lag on information reaching the Communists from Geneva.

THE ALLIES have notified the Red Cross that 37,500 names should be removed from the list of prisoners. There was no immediate explanation of the difference between the UN and Red figures.

Hopes dwindled for an armistice before the provisional cease-fire line agreement expires next Thursday—in just five days.

However, both the truce supervision delegates and the prisoner exchange subcommittee, which met Saturday after a three-day recess, scheduled meetings for 11 a. m. Sunday (9 p. m. EST Saturday) in Panmunjom.

Adm. Libby asked the Communists to answer his proposal for a prompt exchange of sick and wounded prisoners Sunday if possible.

He also asked for an answer to Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's appeal to Communist military commanders to open North Korean prison camps to representatives of the International Red Cross.

North Korean Maj. Gen. Lee San Jo said Ridgway's request was under study and would be answered.

'Get-Rich-Quick' Deals Slated For Ag Panel Probe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 — (AP)—Two "get-rich-quick" deals involving Department of Agriculture employes may get a public airing early next year by a Senate committee.

One involved profits of more than $100,000 from leasing surplus government buildings at Camp Crowder, Mo., and then subleasing them to another government agency to store gain.

The other was an "investment pool" formed by federal employes to speculate in oil and gas rights on land formerly owned by or under mortgages held by the Department of Agriculture.

Three investigators for the Senate Agriculture Committee, under Sen. Ellender (D-La), have been gathering data for a preliminary report on both matters.

Ellender said in New Orleans the probe would not be a general investigation of the department but would be confined to charges made by Williams and Sen. Kem (R-Mo.)

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt), the ranking minority member of the Agriculture Committee, said in Montpelier, Vt., that a full-dress Senate hearing is probable.

Aiken said favoritism and wrongdoing are involved and that some of the acts probably "not only were unethical but illegal as well."

Judge Murphy Said Declining Cleanup Task

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Federal Judge Thomas F. Murphy reportedly has decided against heading President Truman's commission to expose wrongdoers in the government.

The reports appeared Saturday in both the New York Times and the New York Herald Tribune.

The Times said Murphy, who is said to have agreed last week to head the federal cleanup commission, "changed his mind because of protests from colleagues on the federal bench."

Murphy could not be reached here for comment.

In Washington, Presidential press Secretary Joseph Short had no comment. Although Mr. Truman said last week that an announcement dealing with the scandals might be anticipated, none has been made to date.

The Herald Tribune said Murphy reportedly changed his mind about taking the commission post because:

1. Of his failure to get the men he wanted as his aides.

2. He would lack subpoena or contempt powers as investigator.

3. He fears that he would become just "window dressing" in Washington.

"I have always had respect and love for my sister," Wickham said, "but felt it a duty to remain single" while his parents were living. "Now that both parents are gone and we are alone, there is no reason to be separated any longer," he added.

Soviet Germany's Christmas Slated To Be Very Grim

DUESSELDORF, Dec. 22—(AP)—What will it be like in the Soviet army in East Germany on Christmas?

Grim. Very Grim.

This information comes from Nikolai Ivanovich Shutov, lately a sergeant in Stalin's frontier guards along the Iron Curtain, and now a political refugee in West Germany.

He got fed up with the Soviet Army.

Here's how he pictures the holiday for his ex-comrades in the East zone:

Christmas itself will be ignored.

It will be the usual dawn-to-dark grind of training and duty, with the last meal of the day at 9 p. m.

Even if the feeble attempts of the dominated East Germans look inviting to him, the Soviet soldier will have to stay away. Troops are not allowed out of the barracks alone.

All they see beyond the barbed wire of the barracks is the streets they use to march to and from their duty areas.

CITY OFFICES, with the exception of fire and police departments, will observe a two-day holiday Monday and Tuesday.

Offices in Pickaway Courthouse will also be closed Monday as well as on Christmas Day.

Most industries and plants are expected to observe the holiday by closing Monday and Tuesday.

Assistant Postmaster Leon Van Vliet said the local postoffice will maintain full hours Monday.

On Sunday some deliveries will be made to relieve the Christmas rush of mail, but on Christmas Day only specials and Christmas packages will be delivered.

Van Vliet said that the amount of mail handled this year has been "staggering."

"Probably the heaviest we've ever had," he said. He estimated that most mail would be cleared by Monday night, Christmas Eve.

Christmas dinners will be served in Pickaway County institutions Tuesday.

'Get-Rich-Quick' Deals Slated For Ag Panel Probe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 — (AP)—Two "get-rich-quick" deals involving Department of Agriculture employes may get a public airing early next year by a Senate committee.

One involved profits of more than $100,000 from leasing surplus government buildings at Camp Crowder, Mo., and then subleasing them to another government agency to store gain.

The other was an "investment pool" formed by federal employes to speculate in oil and gas rights on land formerly owned by or under mortgages held by the Department of Agriculture.

Three investigators for the Senate Agriculture Committee, under Sen. Ellender (D-La), have been gathering data for a preliminary report on both matters.

Ellender said in New Orleans the probe would not be a general investigation of the department but would be confined to charges made by Williams and Sen. Kem (R-Mo.)

Sen. Aiken (R-Vt), the ranking minority member of the Agriculture Committee, said in Montpelier, Vt., that a full-dress Senate hearing is probable.

Aiken said favoritism and wrongdoing are involved and that some of the acts probably "not only were unethical but illegal as well."

Judge Murphy Said Declining Cleanup Task

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—Federal Judge Thomas F. Murphy reportedly has decided against heading President Truman's commission to expose wrongdoers in the government.

The reports appeared Saturday in both the New York Times and the New York Herald Tribune.

The Times said Murphy, who is said to have agreed last week to head the federal cleanup commission, "changed his mind because of protests from colleagues on the federal bench."

Murphy could not be reached here for comment.

In Washington, Presidential press Secretary Joseph Short had no comment. Although Mr. Truman said last week that an announcement dealing with the scandals might be anticipated, none has been made to date.

The Herald Tribune said Murphy reportedly changed his mind about taking the commission post because:

1. Of his failure to get the men he wanted as his aides.

2. He would lack subpoena or contempt powers as investigator.

3. He fears that he would become just "window dressing" in Washington.

Brother, 'Sister' Plan Marriage

NORTH BERGEN, N. J., Dec. 22—(AP)—A brother and his sister (by adoption), who say they've been in love for 30 years, were to be married Saturday.

George Harold Wickham, 58, says his bride-to-be is Miss Isabel Wickham, 51, whom his parents adopted more than 40 years ago.

"I have always had respect and love for my sister," Wickham said, "but felt it a duty to remain single" while his parents were living. "Now that both parents are gone and we are alone, there is no reason to be separated any longer," he added.

Soviet Germany's Christmas Slated To Be Very Grim

DUESSELDORF, Dec. 22—(AP)—What will it be like in the Soviet army in East Germany on Christmas?

Grim. Very Grim.

This information comes from Nikolai Ivanovich Shutov, lately a sergeant in Stalin's frontier guards along the Iron Curtain, and now a political refugee in West Germany.

He got fed up with the Soviet Army.

Here's how he pictures the holiday for his ex-comrades in the East zone:

Christmas itself will be ignored.

It will be the usual dawn-to-dark grind of training and duty, with the last meal of the day at 9 p. m.

Even if the feeble attempts of the dominated East Germans look inviting to him, the Soviet soldier will have to stay away. Troops are not allowed out of the barracks alone.

All they see beyond the barbed wire of the barracks is the streets they use to march to and from their duty areas.

oxide gas might have snuffed out the lives of the entombed miners.

Only six injured were reported to have been brought up from the shaft during the night.

Eight hours after the blast Foster said rescue workers, sweating even in the sub-freezing temperature as they worked, were still 1,000 feet away from the spot where the miners were reported to be.

Five of the injured were in a serious condition and one was not expected to live.

W. W. Lamont, United Mine Workers hospital superintendent, made an urgent plea for oxygen tents. Blood plasma was rushed in from nearby cities and blood donors were called for.

City officials prepared to handle as many as 100 bodies at the junior high school here.

Foster estimated that 220 men were in the mine at the time of the explosion. The power supply went off shortly after the blast at 8:45 p. m. (EST).

Mine authorities tried to telephone back into the web of tunnels to warn miners of the explosion. There was no answer from the part of the mine where the blast occurred.

Foster said he didn't know whether telephone communications had been knocked out or whether no one was alive in that tunnel to answer the call.

Hundreds gathered around the top of the shaft waiting for word from the rescue workers who worked in teams of six men. They wore gas masks. It was a slow, tedious process as they restored ventilation as they went.

There were wives and mothers in the crowd, many of whom had left their Christmas gift wrapping as word spread of the tragedy. Some were crying. Others just stood there, waiting — waiting for some word.

166,500 Pieces Of Outgoing Mail Handled Here

Circleville postal workers have handled a total of 166,500 pieces of outgoing mail here this week in the final pre-Christmas rush.

The peak of the local mailing season has been passed, although the letter carriers themselves are still burdened down with deliveries.

Two deliveries are to be made Sunday, however, in an attempt to put the local postoffice in position to clean up its Christmas mail Monday.

And a midnight service of holy communion with the Rev. L. C. Sherburne officiating will be held at 11:30 p. m. Monday. The Christmas Eve service will continue past midnight into Christmas Day.

Yule Worship Rites Readied By Lutherans

Pre-Christmas observances will start in Trinity Lutheran church during worship service Sunday.

The sermon theme is "The Immaculate Conception," taken from text in Matthew. The Rev. George Troutman says: "The miracle of Christ's conception and birth is frequently overlooked. It was an essential part of God's plan of salvation, and must be properly regarded if we are to understand it.

"Another important factor in the plan is found in the two natures of Christ. The human nature made the act of propitiation possible, and the divine nature made it actual. Without belief in the two natures it is difficult, if not impossible, to explain Christ's power as Savior."

The Senior Choir will lead the congregation in the singing of the Christmas hymns "Come Hither Ye Faithful," "Once In Royal David's City" and "While Shepherds Watched Their Flocks." Senior Choir will also offer as the anthem "Lo, How A Rose E'er Blooming". The music will feature a solo by Miss Ruth Troutman, "Cantique De Noel".

We, Christians must remember that outside of Christ there is no light and, at this season of the year, we must reaffirm the truths about Him."

The junior choir, directed by Miss Ruth Troutman, will sing "In Bethlehem's Lowly Manger". The senior choir, directed by Carl Leist, will sing a medley of Christmas carols and "A Child Was Born".

Teachings of the BAHA'I Faith

"Since there is only one God, the great teachers of religion in all ages have each taught the same religious faith. They have developed and adapted it to meet the needs of the people in each period of history. The unfoldment of religion from age to age is called 'progressive revelation'.

"Baha'u'llah, the Founder of the Baha'i Faith, is the Manifestation of God for our time."

Parsons Outlines History Of Christmas In Address

Hal B. Spencer, president of Presbyterian Men's Brotherhood, has been selected as one of three delegates from the Columbus Presbytery to attend the general meeting of the National Council of Presbyterian Men.

This conference is to be held in Chicago February 1 and 2 and will be attended by Presbyterian laymen from all over the United States. Spencer plans to report in full to the local church and the Brotherhood.

At a meeting of the Brotherhood this week, plans were made to use a wire recorder to record the coming Christmas service in the church. The recording is to be played later for the benefit of invalid members of the church and others who cannot attend the service.

This meeting was highlighted by a talk on the history of Christmas, given by Thomas Parsons of Circleville, former history professor. In tracing the origin of the holiday, Parsons pointed out that many ancient peoples, including the Persians and the Jews, had been accustomed to celebrate a festival at this time in December. He noted that it was the belief of many scholars that the authorities of the early Christian church who fixed the date of December 25 may have consciously used a date which coincided with a pagan festival. Such early ecclesiastics often felt, he remarked, that in many instances it was better to change and purify an existing pagan custom or observance rather than to substitute something entirely new.

Parsons mentioned, however, that many modern astronomers are inclined to the belief that the Star of Bethlehem was not a mythical star but a star actually visible in the heavens today. Their most recent calculations seem to tend to a confirming of the date of December 25 as the actual date of the birth of Christ.

This would lead one, Parsons indicated, to feel that in all such matters there is a Divine leading; that there is, in fact, no conflict between science and religion, but rather instances of science taking some time to catch up with religion.

Parsons also touched upon the many legends connected with Christmas—the origin of the use of the evergreen tree, the varying observances of Christmas in foreign lands and even in this country and the history of Christmas in America.

He stated that Colonial times saw little observance of Christmas except in Virginia and Maryland, where the influence of the Church of England was apparent. The Puritans of New England frowned upon the festival — Massachusetts even passing a law forbidding the observance of the holiday, a law which remained upon the books for 22 years.

In conclusion, he asserted his belief that all Christian peoples, in spite of differing ways of observing the holiday, were in accord in the spirit of the occasion and in their wish to celebrate the birth of the Saviour.

Pre-Christmas Rites Planned By First EUB

Christmas Sunday will be observed in First Evangelical United Brethren church with unified worship service at 9:30 a. m.

Miss Lucille Kirkwood, organist, is to play a medley of nativity music consisting of "Christmas Morning," "Cantique De Noel" and "Now Let All the Heavens Adore Thee."

Church Choir, directed by Montford Kirkwood Jr., will sing an anthem entitled, "Come and Adore Him."

"God's Wonderfulness — Man's Wonderment" is to be the sermon theme, derived from Isaiah 9:1-7 and St. Luke 2:18.

Of this theme, the Rev. Carl L. Wilson comments: "The story of Christmas is written in God's wonderfulness and man's wonderment. The Christ of Christmas was named 'wonderful.'

"True to his name, how wonderful was He! In His birth, in His works, in His words, in His life, in His death, in His resurrection, in His ascension, in His return to receive the Church and reign over the earth. He is just what His name declares—'wonderful.' And He is just the same, yesterday, today and forever. And wonderment on the part of man is inescapable to the thinking person if the heart and mind together center on Him who made Christmas possible.

"The wonder of His incarnation has not waned with the centuries. The wonder of his revelation after nineteen hundred years, is still the main topic of discussion among men. The wonder of His exaltation is the climax of all."

Church school will study a Bible lesson entitled, "The Promise Fulfilled in Christ." Following the class session, the school will meet for presentation of Otterbein home gifts, which go to the Evangelical United Brethren children and elderly folks homes in Lebanon. The gifts will be placed in the manger altar with the children's department providing a Nativity scene in pantomime.

Miss Gladys Noggle, Children's Director, will be in charge of the pantomime, with Church School Superintendent Edwin Richardson presiding at the gift presentation.

"The Music Of Christmas," a carol choir cantata, will be presented at 8 p. m. Sunday in the sanctuary of First Evangelical United Brethren church by Fidelis Chorus.

Miss Pat Nau, accompanist, will play "Meditation," "Lullaby" and "March of Shepherds."

The cantata, directed by Clarence Radcliffe, is made up of the following selections: "Along the Olden Christmas Road," "O' Holy Night;" "The Everlasting Light;" "There Were Shepherds Abiding in the Field;" "Suddenly There Was With the Angels;" "With Joy They Hailed Its Light;" "No Little Cradle"; and "Glory to the Newborn King."

The Rev. Mr. Wilson, will direct call to worship, a prayer in unison, the doxology and Christmas scriptural litany. Following the cantata, an offering will be received for furthering church music by the chorus.

The chorus personnel consists of Delores Valentine, Mae Elizabeth Martin, Donna Wellington, Dolores Mavis, Phyllis Hawkes, Marilyn Stauffer, Virginia Wise, Pat Wellington, Fern Wise, Velma Wise, Judy Horine, Nancy Ankrom, Patty Graham, Janet Eccard, Sandra Valentine, Marsha Morgan, Bonnalee Meadows, Jane Davis, Marilyn Francis, Leona Wise, Ruth Styers, David Steele, Judson Kochensparger and Elliott Hawkes.

It is estimated that each automobile contains about 30 pounds of sulphur.

THOUGHTS OF PEACE

THERE IS an old story of a painter who sought long and far for a subject to illustrate his idea of peace, and who sought in vain until he chanced upon a mother bird nestling her young on a branch that hung just above the brink of a turbulent waterfall.

Both mother and her young, though it seemed any moment they might be dislodged from the branch that tossed in the wind, lived oblivious to the torrent below and the roar and the spray which surrounded them.

It is a picture the world might well dwell upon this Christmas season of 1951. Six years have passed since that Christmas when hearts glowed with the thought that war was a thing of the past and the world assured of a period of tranquility. Today such a period seems far away.

In many homes thoughts turn to sons and brothers facing hardship and peril, wounds and even death, in the mountain fastnesses of Korea. Other sons and brothers are in armies in Germany and Austria. And more are being drafted to prepare against what all trust may not come to pass.

The hope and the ideal of Christmas are still to be achieved. But the message of Christmas is nevertheless strong and vibrant, and trenchant with the meaning it has ever had for men of faith.

It is a message that merits pondering by all Americans as they are called to face a national emergency, to enter upon a period of self-discipline and sacrifice, to gird themselves for a defense—at home and abroad—of the things that have made America great.

One of the things that has made America great is that her sons have always known that true peace is not the fruit of easy living, but the result of responsibilities faced and right decisions made and adhered to.

The Man of Galilee, in whose name we celebrate Christmas, knew that peace.

PLANE LOSSES HEAVY

OFFICIALS of the Air Force can testify that fighting in Korea has developed into more than a police action. To date more than 1,300 United Nations planes, mostly American, have been lost. Of these 583 have been destroyed in combat, a figure which is indicative of the growing air power of the Communists.

Enemy ground fire, directed at planes supporting U.S. ground troops, has been the largest single factor of destruction. The Reds are reported to have command of the air at the present time. Enemy plane losses to date are given as only 308.

While the United Nations continues to lean over backwards to avoid a "break with Russia," the Chinese are obtaining their planes from Russia—if, in fact, they are not actually being flown by Russian pilots.

Here is a new factor which will have a decisive effect upon Washington policy concerning the future of the War in Korea. Initial U.S. victories in Korea were possible because of overwhelming air supremacy. Without that, effective ground action will become increasingly difficult.

These Days

Last week-end, I spent at Notre Dame university witnessing an event of historic significance. A number of us there tried to recall a similar incident in human history, but we all failed.

It was a meeting of the Natural Law Institute, but this year something entirely new was added to the convocation. Instead of the speakers being Roman Catholic clergy and laymen, the principal lecturers were Dr. Hu Shih, who spoke as a Confucian and a Pragmatist; Dr. Khalifa Abdul Hakim, a Moslem, who came all the way from Pakistan; Dr. M. S. Sundaram, a Hindu, first secretary, Embassy of India in Washington; Rabbi Solomon Freehof, of Pittsburgh, who spoke as a Jew. I read a paper on the Buddhist position prepared by Prof. Daisetz T. Suzuki. To these speakers, in the round-table discussions, must be added Catholics and Protestants, particularly that fascinating Presbyterian, Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr., of Houston, Tex.

Here, under the auspices of a Roman Catholic university, were gathered the representatives of the world's principal religions to discuss their differences and their points of agreement. The differences were many and often profound, and each speaker stood his ground for his own faith and tradition. For instance, Dr. Hakim definitely announced that Islam has nothing to do with the Trinity; that Moslems are monotheists and Unitarians; Dr. Hu Shih, in a defense of John Dewey, proclaimed himself a pragmatist and an atheist; and so the argument went around the clock.

But as great as were the differences, even more profound was the single point of unity; namely, that all human beings, at all times, and in every religious expression, were groping to find a form of superior or divine intelligence, a creative wisdom beyond man; and all human beings of every clime and kind, in some manner, found the natural law, that is, a moral system based on revelation or on an acceptance of tradition.

To the Jews, Christians, and Moslems, this moral law was revealed by God to man; in some of the other faiths, it came to man in other ways. But this curious fact stood out: the sum of the discussion established that the natural law is universal; that the moral code of all peoples is identical.

Dr. Hu Shih, who proclaimed himself an atheist, nevertheless said this:

"It is beyond doubt that throughout Medieval China and down to fairly recent centuries, the canon of sacred scripture of Confucianism. . .was revered and regarded as the highest authority in matters of morals, law, social relations and government policy. It had the authority of Divine Law, an authority comparable to that of the Bible in the Christian countries. The Confucianist canon has acquired this authority not merely because of the establishment of Confucianism as a state religion, nor merely because it was required reading in all Chinese schools and used in all Civil Service examination for the selection of men for public offices, but primarily because some of the books included in the canon in its broader sense do contain some of the universal principles of justice which, in the words of Aristotle, 'All Men, by a natural intuition, feel to be common right and wrong'. . ."

I could not help thinking, during this session, how wonderful is our country. We are not afraid. We need no thought control. We need no policing of the human mind. Where else could such a congregation of the diverse gather to present in absolute freedom so many points of difference, without hatred, without bigotry, without fear?

SYNOPSIS

Donald Kent on his way from New York to his sister's home in suburban Crestwood, where he is assigned to teach a high school class, discovers lovely Anne Atwood, the local Parson's daughter. After four years' absence at college, Anne is returning to Crestwood. Will she be content to settle here, to endure the Manse's genteel poverty? Her mother, Constance Atwood, wonders and worries. Reunion with her beloved parents is happy indeed, but Anne resents their frugal mode of life.

CHAPTER FOUR

A MOMENT later a step was heard on the gravel path leading to the front entrance.

"It's some stranger," said Constance. "I don't recognize his voice—and Dad is taking him into the front room. Thank goodness, that looks all right."

"It always does."

"Yes. It's the one place. I only wish we had more antiques. Enough for the whole house."

Anne went without answering to the mantel above the corner fireplace and found a match. Then, feeling in the pocket of her red linen jacket, she drew out a package of cigarets and, not looking at her mother, lit one.

"Anne, do you—I mean—" Constance stopped.

The girl turned. Her face, usually aglow and vivid, was blank now and calm, as was her voice. But her brown eyes, so like her mother's, were burning.

"Are you trying to say that a minister's daughter ought not to smoke? But you see I decided something while I was at college. I'm myself, too. I'm as much myself as I am a minister's daughter. In fact, maybe more. So I'm going to be myself. I can't stay here any other way."

The soft voice went on. There was a note of inexorability in it that Constance had never heard before.

"Duck, I want to tell you something. I am never, never going to marry a minister! Or any other kind of public servant. I can't bear the thought. I'm fed up! You don't have any freedom. You don't have any money. You scrape and pinch and maneuver, and you can't—you have to—oh! you're simply a slave to what people may say or think of you! That's all you are. Simply a slave."

She stood there, a stranger to her mother in her unequivocal rejection of established values and habits and ways of thought. Then she began speaking again, desperation in her tone now.

"I might as well say it all. It's been on my mind. I don't want to have to go to church every Sunday this year. And I don't want to teach a Sunday School class. And I don't want to join the Youth Group—" She broke off abruptly and flung her cigaret into the empty grate with a defeated gesture. "Oh, all this will bother Dad terribly, won't it? It will hurt him. Because people will talk. Busybodies. And I don't want to hurt him. I wouldn't hurt him for world's." She stopped, her eyes filling with slow tears. "But whatever am I going to do?"

Constance said quietly, "Why don't you talk it over with him? He'll understand; you know he will. He'll find some middle way for you—"

Then Constance went out quickly into the large square hall where her husband stood, at his side an unknown young man who had, under heavy black brows, the most direct, most compelling dark blue eyes she had ever seen. For the rest, he was tall and broad with a serious, somber face. An interesting face, she thought.

"This is Mr. Kent, Constance. Donald Kent. He says he is looking for a couple by the name of Moore who live on our street. I never heard of any Moores in this section of town, but I told him if there were any you would know."

"Why, yes!" Constance moved forward smilingly. "Of course. The Moores are our next-door neighbors, Barth. On the north side. They moved in before noon today while you were in New York."

"Good gracious! Why don't you tell me these things! All the weeks we've been wondering about our new neighbors, and now they've slipped in without my knowing."

"I'm sorry." Constance saw the stranger's glance stray over her own head to rest on Anne behind her. "You were late getting home and then Mrs. Melick telephoned and after that Anne came, so I simply forgot... You are a friend of the Moores?" she went on pleasantly.

He brought his gaze back to meet hers, and she saw that a flame had been lit in their dark blueness.

"Mrs. Moore is my sister," he told her. "And I'm going to live here. I'm the new teacher in the social studies department of your high school. My job starts in September."

"So!" Her hand went out to him in cordial welcome. "How nice to meet you! Mr. Kent, this is my daughter."

She turned, gestured toward Anne who, with arms folded and head back, was leaning nonchalantly against the study doorway. Donald started forward but was stopped by Anne's voice, cool and remote.

"How do you do."

"Well!" The Parson, brisk and friendly, filled in the small icy instant. "I'm glad we're to be neighbors. I'm glad you're to stay with us. Social studies. That's a very important subject these days. I'm interested in it. Some time when you have the leisure I'd like to know just how you're going to approach it. How you expect to put over into young minds the realization—"

"Barth," Constance interjected gently.

"Yes! Yes!" He nodded to Constance. "My wife is afraid I'm going to deliver a sermon to you on the subject right now. But I'm not. I am interested, though. Social relations. Man's relations to man. It's the most important thing in the world today."

Kent turned toward Barth, his face kindling. "That's what I think, too, sir." He hesitated, not wanting to prevaricate too much in his carefully evolved self-introduction. "I wonder—are you sure it's the house next door, Mrs. Atwood? It's dark over there. No one seems to be at home. Yet I know I am expected."

"Yes, I'm sure." Mrs. Atwood answered. "However now that I think about it, I did see their car pull out an hour or so ago. Perhaps they went somewhere for dinner? And if they have—well, why don't you just wait here until they return? By the way, have you had any dinner yourself?"

He gave her a sudden, brilliant, disarming smile. "Well, no, I haven't. But I thought I would just find my way downtown where there must be a diner—"

"A diner! My dear boy, don't you realize we can offer you the finest clam chawder made outside of New England? Or within it, either, for that matter. I'll get another bowl of soup for this young man. Then, Mr. Kent, while we're eating we can, perhaps, discuss a little this business of teaching. Or perhaps I should say art of teaching?"

Anne followed her mother into the study. She whispered, "I'm going to slip away after a few minutes. He didn't come to see me. And I want to unpack my trunk. I'm so glad it got here before I did. Besides, I'm tired."

Could it be the cartoonists are all wet and Uncle Samuel should be represented as a twin of roly poly John Bull?

Five hundred million pounds certainly are round figures—and we do mean round!

Since only 40 million out of 150 million Americans are overweight, that averages 13 pounds too much apiice. And you don't need a mirror to prove that 13 is an unhappy number.

CHRISTMAS--

The real meaning of Christmas — Peace On Earth — Good Will Toward Men.

FRED C. CLARK

The Meaning Of Christmas

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—What is Christmas?

It is the time when people's hearts ring like bells. And legend says that oxen kneel in their stalls at midnight in memory.

Christmas is the anniversary of one kind of faith and selflessness. It is the natal date of a lonely Jewish carpenter who in 35 short years of breath stamped an undying conscience on this world and promised all men life everlasting through belief.

He died a radical upon a cross for what He taught, bleeding slowly to death from the agony of nail and spear wounds. Few listened to His message in His day. He died a minor gadfly to a Roman world.

One of many martyrs to many faiths, time has raised Jesus Christ to a gigantic stature, so that today more than 600 million people, one-fourth of all mankind, celebrate his memory. More men follow Him than any man who ever lived. In the 1,951 years since His birth He has become the greatest religious figure in history

What is Christmas?

It is His spirit and His philosophy—that "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

Today the celebration of His birth, as is His death, is crossed with old pagan ceremonials. But His spirit and His example inflame the day.

Sometimes religious leaders get cross with Santa Claus and say he takes the honors that belong to Jesus. But no one who has read the life of Christ could ever think of Him as being jealous. Santa is just HIM with a beard on.

Perhaps, if Santa Claus pressed his views 365 days a year, as Jesus did—he might, even in these enlightened days, risk a similar persecution.

What is Christmas?

It is the letting-go of hidebound prejudices and having the courage to be sentimental and good. It is the time when men take down a cold unfeeling star from the sky and make it a warm and stirring beacon on a tree.

Mainly the grownups say, "Christmas is for the kids." But they themselves enjoy it most, although often they are oddly ashamed to acknowledge it. In December their crust of foolish sophistication — the crust they grow to protect themselves from disappointment — wears thin. They light a silent candle to an old belief, that most men really do wish each other well but don't know quite what to do about it.

What is Christmas?

It is a season when they can cast away their mutual doubts and really do something for one another.

The Jews, who regard Jesus as only a prophet, have their own festival this time of year. It is called Chanukah, the festival of lights. It lasts eight days. On each day they light another candle, give another gift.

The other day a Jewish friend of mine, whose children go to a public school and love the festival of Christmas, told me the plight of his young daughter.

She came to her father and said:

"Daddy, I was chosen to be an angel in our Christmas play, but do I have the right to play it?"

And her father, knowing her problem, said:

"Honey, be their angel."

I think that is Christmas—and America.

THOUGHTS OF PEACE

THERE IS an old story of a painter who sought long and far for a subject to illustrate his idea of peace, and who sought in vain until he chanced upon a mother bird nestling her young on a branch that hung just above the brink of a turbulent waterfall.

Both mother and her young, though it seemed any moment they might be dislodged from the branch that tossed in the wind, lived oblivious to the torrent below and the roar and the spray which surrounded them.

It is a picture the world might well dwell upon this Christmas season of 1951. Six years have passed since that Christmas when hearts glowed with the thought that war was a thing of the past and the world assured of a period of tranquility. Today such a period seems far away.

In many homes thoughts turn to sons and brothers facing hardship and peril, wounds and even death, in the mountain fastnesses of Korea. Other sons and brothers are in armies in Germany and Austria. And more are being drafted to prepare against what all trust may not come to pass.

The hope and the ideal of Christmas are still to be achieved. But the message of Christmas is nevertheless strong and vibrant, and trenchant with the meaning it has ever had for men of faith.

It is a message that merits pondering by all Americans as they are called to face a national emergency, to enter upon a period of self-discipline and sacrifice, to gird themselves for a defense—at home and abroad—of the things that have made America great.

One of the things that has made America great is that her sons have always known that true peace is not the fruit of easy living, but the result of responsibilities faced and right decisions made and adhered to.

The Man of Galilee, in whose name we celebrate Christmas, knew that peace.

PLANE LOSSES HEAVY

OFFICIALS of the Air Force can testify that fighting in Korea has developed into more than a police action. To date more than 1,300 United Nations planes, mostly American, have been lost. Of these 583 have been destroyed in combat, a figure which is indicative of the growing air power of the Communists.

Enemy ground fire, directed at planes supporting U.S. ground troops, has been the largest single factor of destruction. The Reds are reported to have command of the air at the present time. Enemy plane losses to date are given as only 308.

While the United Nations continues to lean over backwards to avoid a "break with Russia," the Chinese are obtaining their planes from Russia—if, in fact, they are not actually being flown by Russian pilots.

Here is a new factor which will have a decisive effect upon Washington policy concerning the future of the War in Korea. Initial U.S. victories in Korea were possible because of overwhelming air supremacy. Without that, effective ground action will become increasingly difficult.

These Days

Last week-end, I spent at Notre Dame university witnessing an event of historic significance. A number of us there tried to recall a similar incident in human history, but we all failed.

It was a meeting of the Natural Law Institute, but this year something entirely new was added to the convocation. Instead of the speakers being Roman Catholic clergy and laymen, the principal lecturers were Dr. Hu Shih, who spoke as a Confucian and a Pragmatist; Dr. Khalifa Abdul Hakim, a Moslem, who came all the way from Pakistan; Dr. M. S. Sundaram, a Hindu, first secretary, Embassy of India in Washington; Rabbi Solomon Freehof, of Pittsburgh, who spoke as a Jew. I read a paper on the Buddhist position prepared by Prof. Daisetz T. Suzuki. To these speakers, in the round-table discussions, must be added Catholics and Protestants, particularly that fascinating Presbyterian, Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr., of Houston, Tex.

Here, under the auspices of a Roman Catholic university, were gathered the representatives of the world's principal religions to discuss their differences and their points of agreement. The differences were many and often profound, and each speaker stood his ground for his own faith and tradition. For instance, Dr. Hakim definitely announced that Islam has nothing to do with the Trinity; that Moslems are monotheists and Unitarians; Dr. Hu Shih, in a defense of John Dewey, proclaimed himself a pragmatist and an atheist; and so the argument went around the clock.

But as great as were the differences, even more profound was the single point of unity; namely, that all human beings, at all times, and in every religious expression, were groping to find a form of superior or divine intelligence, a creative wisdom beyond man; and all human beings of every clime and kind, in some manner, found the natural law, that is, a moral system based on revelation or on an acceptance of tradition.

To the Jews, Christians, and Moslems, this moral law was revealed by God to man; in some of the other faiths, it came to man in other ways. But this curious fact stood out: the sum of the discussion established that the natural law is universal; that the moral code of all peoples is identical.

Dr. Hu Shih, who proclaimed himself an atheist, nevertheless said this:

"It is beyond doubt that throughout Medieval China and down to fairly recent centuries, the canon of sacred scripture of Confucianism. . .was revered and regarded as the highest authority in matters of morals, law, social relations and government policy. It had the authority of Divine Law, an authority comparable to that of the Bible in the Christian countries. The Confucianist canon has acquired this authority not merely because of the establishment of Confucianism as a state religion, nor merely because it was required reading in all Chinese schools and used in all Civil Service examination for the selection of men for public offices, but primarily because some of the books included in the canon in its broader sense do contain some of the universal principles of justice which, in the words of Aristotle, 'All Men, by a natural intuition, feel to be common right and wrong'. . ."

I could not help thinking, during this session, how wonderful is our country. We are not afraid. We need no thought control. We need no policing of the human mind. Where else could such a congregation of the diverse gather to present in absolute freedom so many points of difference, without hatred, without bigotry, without fear?

SYNOPSIS

Donald Kent on his way from New York to his sister's home in suburban Crestwood, where he is assigned to teach a high school class, discovers lovely Anne Atwood, the local Parson's daughter. After four years' absence at college, Anne is returning to Crestwood. Will she be content to settle here, to endure the Manse's genteel poverty? Her mother, Constance Atwood, wonders and worries. Reunion with her beloved parents is happy indeed, but Anne resents their frugal mode of life.

CHAPTER FOUR

A MOMENT later a step was heard on the gravel path leading to the front entrance.

"It's some stranger," said Constance. "I don't recognize his voice—and Dad is taking him into the front room. Thank goodness, that looks all right."

"It always does."

"Yes. It's the one place. I only wish we had more antiques. Enough for the whole house."

Anne went without answering to the mantel above the corner fireplace and found a match. Then, feeling in the pocket of her red linen jacket, she drew out a package of cigarets and, not looking at her mother, lit one.

"Anne, do you—I mean—" Constance stopped.

The girl turned. Her face, usually aglow and vivid, was blank now and calm, as was her voice. But her brown eyes, so like her mother's, were burning.

"Are you trying to say that a minister's daughter ought not to smoke? But you see I decided something while I was at college. I'm myself, too. I'm as much myself as I am a minister's daughter. In fact, maybe more. So I'm going to be myself. I can't stay here any other way."

The soft voice went on. There was a note of inexorability in it that Constance had never heard before.

"Duck, I want to tell you something. I am never, never going to marry a minister! Or any other kind of public servant. I can't bear the thought. I'm fed up! You don't have any freedom. You don't have any money. You scrape and pinch and maneuver, and you can't—you have to—oh! you're simply a slave to what people may say or think of you! That's all you are. Simply a slave."

She stood there, a stranger to her mother in her unequivocal rejection of established values and habits and ways of thought. Then she began speaking again, desperation in her tone now.

"I might as well say it all. It's been on my mind. I don't want to have to go to church every Sunday this year. And I don't want to teach a Sunday School class. And I don't want to join the Youth Group—" She broke off abruptly and flung her cigaret into the empty grate with a defeated gesture. "Oh, all this will bother Dad terribly, won't it? It will hurt him. Because people will talk. Busybodies. And I don't want to hurt him. I wouldn't hurt him for world's." She stopped, her eyes filling with slow tears. "But whatever am I going to do?"

Constance said quietly, "Why don't you talk it over with him? He'll understand; you know he will. He'll find some middle way for you—"

Then Constance went out quickly into the large square hall where her husband stood, at his side an unknown young man who had, under heavy black brows, the most direct, most compelling dark blue eyes she had ever seen. For the rest, he was tall and broad with a serious, somber face. An interesting face, she thought.

"This is Mr. Kent, Constance. Donald Kent. He says he is looking for a couple by the name of Moore who live on our street. I never heard of any Moores in this section of town, but I told him if there were any you would know."

"Why, yes!" Constance moved forward smilingly. "Of course. The Moores are our next-door neighbors, Barth. On the north side. They moved in before noon today while you were in New York."

"Good gracious! Why don't you tell me these things! All the weeks we've been wondering about our new neighbors, and now they've slipped in without my knowing."

"I'm sorry." Constance saw the stranger's glance stray over her own head to rest on Anne behind her. "You were late getting home and then Mrs. Melick telephoned and after that Anne came, so I simply forgot... You are a friend of the Moores?" she went on pleasantly.

He brought his gaze back to meet hers, and she saw that a flame had been lit in their dark blueness.

"Mrs. Moore is my sister," he told her. "And I'm going to live here. I'm the new teacher in the social studies department of your high school. My job starts in September."

"So!" Her hand went out to him in cordial welcome. "How nice to meet you! Mr. Kent, this is my daughter."

She turned, gestured toward Anne who, with arms folded and head back, was leaning nonchalantly against the study doorway. Donald started forward but was stopped by Anne's voice, cool and remote.

"How do you do."

"Well!" The Parson, brisk and friendly, filled in the small icy instant. "I'm glad we're to be neighbors. I'm glad you're to stay with us. Social studies. That's a very important subject these days. I'm interested in it. Some time when you have the leisure I'd like to know just how you're going to approach it. How you expect to put over into young minds the realization—"

"Barth," Constance interjected gently.

"Yes! Yes!" He nodded to Constance. "My wife is afraid I'm going to deliver a sermon to you on the subject right now. But I'm not. I am interested, though. Social relations. Man's relations to man. It's the most important thing in the world today."

Kent turned toward Barth, his face kindling. "That's what I think, too, sir." He hesitated, not wanting to prevaricate too much in his carefully evolved self-introduction. "I wonder—are you sure it's the house next door, Mrs. Atwood? It's dark over there. No one seems to be at home. Yet I know I am expected."

"Yes, I'm sure." Mrs. Atwood answered. "However now that I think about it, I did see their car pull out an hour or so ago. Perhaps they went somewhere for dinner? And if they have—well, why don't you just wait here until they return? By the way, have you had any dinner yourself?"

He gave her a sudden, brilliant, disarming smile. "Well, no, I haven't. But I thought I would just find my way downtown where there must be a diner—"

"A diner! My dear boy, don't you realize we can offer you the finest clam chawder made outside of New England? Or within it, either, for that matter. I'll get another bowl of soup for this young man. Then, Mr. Kent, while we're eating we can, perhaps, discuss a little this business of teaching. Or perhaps I should say art of teaching?"

Anne followed her mother into the study. She whispered, "I'm going to slip away after a few minutes. He didn't come to see me. And I want to unpack my trunk. I'm so glad it got here before I did. Besides, I'm tired."

A motorist said to the owner of a garage, "At last you've got a good night man here! I've been watching him for fifteen minutes. He handled that car beautifully. Not a drop of oil wasted. He put the hood down gently, wiped his hands on clean tissue before opening the door, meshed the gears without a sound, and backed out with extreme care into the street." "You're very observant," said the garage owner bitterly, "but I think you also ought to know that that's his own car."

Could it be the cartoonists are all wet and Uncle Samuel should be represented as a twin of roly poly John Bull?

Meanwhile, Harvard anthropologists report that the average government official tends to be a skinny guy. Does that mean the "man in the street" is just trying to walk off a too hefty lunch?

Five hundred million pounds certainly are round figures—and we do mean round!

Grandpappy Jenkins says maybe our national coat-of-arms should be a knife and fork rampant on a field of pork chops.

Since only 40 million out of 150 million Americans are overweight, that averages 13 pounds too much apiice. And you don't need a mirror to prove that 13 is an unhappy number.

CHRISTMAS--

The real meaning of Christmas — Peace On Earth — Good Will Toward Men.

FRED C. CLARK

The Meaning Of Christmas

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK, Dec. 22—(AP)—What is Christmas?

It is the time when people's hearts ring like bells. And legend says that oxen kneel in their stalls at midnight in memory.

Christmas is the anniversary of one kind of faith and selflessness. It is the natal date of a lonely Jewish carpenter who in 35 short years of breath stamped an undying conscience on this world and promised all men life everlasting through belief.

He died a radical upon a cross for what He taught, bleeding slowly to death from the agony of nail and spear wounds. Few listened to His message in His day. He died a minor gadfly to a Roman world.

One of many martyrs to many faiths, time has raised Jesus Christ to a gigantic stature, so that today more than 600 million people, one-fourth of all mankind, celebrate his memory. More men follow Him than any man who ever lived. In the 1,951 years since His birth He has become the greatest religious figure in history

What is Christmas?

It is His spirit and His philosophy—that "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

Today the celebration of His birth, as is His death, is crossed with old pagan ceremonials. But His spirit and His example inflame the day.

Sometimes religious leaders get cross with Santa Claus and say he takes the honors that belong to Jesus. But no one who has read the life of Christ could ever think of Him as being jealous. Santa is just HIM with a beard on.

Perhaps, if Santa Claus pressed his views 365 days a year, as Jesus did—he might, even in these enlightened days, risk a similar persecution.

What is Christmas?

It is the letting-go of hidebound prejudices and having the courage to be sentimental and good. It is the time when men take down a cold unfeeling star from the sky and make it a warm and stirring beacon on a tree.

Mainly the grownups say, "Christmas is for the kids." But they themselves enjoy it most, although often they are oddly ashamed to acknowledge it. Pickaway County Girl Scouts are having Christmas parties, sharing with less fortunate residents and entering into the holiday festivities along with adults in the community.

Troop 16 of Ashville enjoyed a supper and gift exchange in the home of Assistant Leader Mrs. Elwood Morrison. The girls prepared and delivered a Christmas basket to a needy family and sang carols in the homes of friends and shutins of the community.

Future plans of Troop 16 include a visit to the Archeological Museum in Columbus and the company which manufactures Girl Scout cookies. Mrs. Everett Peters is leader of the troop and Mrs. Stanley Bowers is an assistant.

Mrs. Ed Pritchard and Mrs. Tom Rife, leaders of Troop 20 of Ashville have assisted their girls in making gifts for their parents. A Christmas party and gift exchange was held Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Pritchard for members of the troop.

Another Ashville troop, No. 12, with Mrs. Felix Dore' and Mrs. Charles Trone as leaders, have aided members of their troop in making surprise gifts for their parents and sending cards to friends who are ill.

Mrs. Steven Cook and Mrs. Cleve Hickman assisted with a Christmas party and gift exchange held in Ashville Lutheran church.

In Circleville, Troop 13 held a party in Girl Scout headquarters which was arranged by patrols of the troop. Decorations consisting of a manger scene, a lighted Christmas tree and two small white crinoline trees, were made by one patrol and games and entertainment for the party were arranged by the other group. Troop 13 also made Christmasgifts for their parents.

Troop 15, with leaders Mrs. Lee Cook and Mrs. Lloyd Weiss held a Christmas party and gift exchange in Girl Scout headquarters.

Each girl brought jam and jelly which was presented to Circleville Home and Hospital and concluded the party with group singing of carols.

A highlight of the program was a Fly-Up ceremony which advanced members of the troop from Brownies to intermediate Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Bernard Young, Girl Scout commissioner, was a guest at the meeting along with parents, teachers and friends.

DON'T MAR HOLIDAY

Drivers Should Put Safety At Top Of Shopping List

Ohio Department of Highway Director T. J. Kauer Saturday called on Ohioans to put safety at the top of their last-minute Christmas shopping list.

"A safe Christmas celebration, free from traffic accidents that mar holiday happiness in the homes of Ohio residents, is the very best present anybody can give or receive," he said.

Motorists and pedestrians were asked to recognize the extra holiday hazards and to offset them with the extra caution needed to hold down accidents that make the Christmas-New Year period the most dangerous time of the year. Traffic accidents tend to reach their peak at year-end because of Winter weather, earlier darkness and holiday festivity.

"If everyone," Kauer said, "assumes personal responsibility for a safe celebration for himself and others, whether he is walking or driving in traffic, then Christmas will be a truly happy holiday for all of us."

THE STATE Highway Department's Division of Traffic and Safety offered the following suggestions to keep the spirit of Christmas — alive:

1. Start early and take it easy when you are driving. Heavy holiday travel is especially dangerous because of Winter's earlier darkness and bad weather.

2. Be extra alert when you are walking. Avoid the rush of last-minute Christmas shopping and carry packages so they do not obstruct your view.

3. Stay sober when you are celebrating. Don't let holiday spirit—or spirits—replace commonsense and caution when you drive during the Christmas New Year period.

"Every family in Ohio should put one extra gift under its Christmas tree this year," declared Kauer. "That gift is life. Don't let death take your holiday!"

ONCE UPON A CHRISTMAS EVE

By WILLIAM RITT

THOUGH Eski doesn't know it, there is some one in his North Pole home who is watching Eski on his magical television screen which shows how every child in the world, good or otherwise, is behaving.

COULD IT BE--it can't be--but it is--Santa Claus! Kindly Old Santa, disturbed by Eski's unhappiness, ponders the problem of how he might be able to help the little Eskimo child trim that Christmas tree.

"I CANNOT change the schedule of my Christmas Eve gift tour now," worries the Old Saint, "it's too late for that!" He stares unhappily through the window of his workshop into the Arctic night. Santa sees the Great Dipper, its seven bright stars gleaming like jewels in the sky. Suddenly---"I have it!" he shouts. Quickly, he calls the World Astromers' club, asks them a favor. The star gazers call a meeting to vote on it. (To Be Concluded)

Christmas Boxes From Samoa

PAGO PAGO, Samoa — (AP) — School children of American Samoa have sent 49 Christmas boxes filled with specimens of island handicraft to school youngsters in America.

One of the boxes will go to an elementary school in each of the state capitals and the District of Columbia.

The boxes are made of pandanus leaf and each contains a woven lady's purse, a handbag, Samoan cowrie shells, a seashell necklace and a floor mat. A poster depicting Samoan life and painted by the children accompanies each box along with a letter conveying holiday greetings from Samoa to America.

Fluid sucked from the bodies of a spider's prey is stored in reservoirs on the spider's back for use when needed.

Even Christmas Cards Go 'Red' In Hungary

BUDAPEST — (AP) — Things have changed in recent years in Communist-dominated Hungary — even to the Christmas cards.

The Hungarian citizen will have to do a lot of rummaging around in a few privately owned stationery shops to find any typical Anglo-Saxon greeting cards.

However, in the big state-owned stationery shops there is a great variety of Christmas cards, none of which contain even a hint of Christmas as a religious holiday.

The up-to-date cards show such things as a tractor bringing presents and a tree. The Communist Christmas card "line" is carried out with a factory showing the Red Star in the background.

MOST OF the postcards are dull, multi-colored things. Some show the happy faces of children wishing pleasant holidays, a distinctly neutral form of greeting.

This card would suffice for any holiday.

The New Year's cards are propaganda pieces too. On one, the traditional New Year's piglet with the traditional four-leaf clover in its mouth wishes everyone a fruitful New Year in front of the steadily ascending production curve.

The only old timer who is still persona grata here is Santa Claus.

And even he has been persuaded to wear the Red Star on his cap.

By law, the "pattern pieces" of a trial strike made by the U.S. Mint are now carefully destroyed. In early days, however, such coins were often preserved and thus came into the hands of collectors.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH greets Ava Gardner in London at a midnight show for the benefit of the National Playing Fields Association. Standing beside the actress is her new groom, Frank Sinatra. American screen star Rhonda Fleming (third from left) also attended. (International)

SANTA TO THE SICK

He Makes Toys for Ailing Children

Asher A. Ache paints toys which he made himself.

By FRANKLIN BANKER
Central Press Correspondent

HELLERTOWN, Pa. — Santa Claus to dozens of tiddies in 18 states and several foreign countries is a big-hearted Pennsylvania Dutchman, traditionally merry and ruddy, who'd "rather make some kid happy than have a million dollars."

In some ways it is good that Asher A. Ache, 52, is a bachelor, for he would certainly spoil any youngsters of his own, and he probably wouldn't have gotten round to making the 6,000 toys which he has given to a multitude of less fortunate boys and girls in the last 25 years.

However, as it is, he works nights at a steel plant and delights in spending his days drawing, sawing and painting bright wooden toys such as Humpty Dumpty, a six-piece rabbit orchestra, Mother Goose characters, baby chicks, and — especially for the Christmas season — Saint Nick, snowmen and Nativity figurines.

These he carefully wraps and mails to children in orphan homes and hospitals, besides others who are invalids, blind or sick. In some cases Ache will also patiently write long letters to stricken tots. Many send back simple letters of thanks, which please him.

ACHE (pronounced "Ah-hee") watches the newspapers for polio cases and the like and never fails to send toys to the young victims. Some of his little friends bring a lump to your throat. There is pitiful little Jimmy, paralyzed, who is 18 but has the body of a six-year-old. Five shelves in the room in which he spends his life are filled with toys made by "Uncle Asher."

Pretty little Linda, blond and curly-haired, blind since her birth three years ago. "I held her for over an hour," Ache tenderly recalled. "She's got a lot of my toys . . . she'll feel them all over with her sensitive fingers."

Hundreds visit his rural cottage at Christmastime to watch his strong hands fashion toys out of white pine boards. He is truly one of Santa's workers, working steadily by a coal stove, puffing his pipe, gleaming with anticipation as his kindly blue eyes look outdoors sometimes watching the first snowflakes.

ACHE'S toy idea grew out of a hobby. Talented in drawing, he began painting on wood the familiar characters of comic strips. Now he has over 800 of them, about eight inches high and mounted—a unique collection he values at $20,000.

There's been no stopping him since he thought of making similar toys for kiddies. Frequently his arthritis won't let him sleep long, so he arises after brief naps to bend over his whirring jig saw. He forgets to eat.

"You're happy when you're giving something away," he explains. "If I had a million, I'd give it all away."

He is painstaking. He may do a drawing five times until it suits him. Some toys take 12 hours to cut out. Indeed, it was a 30-hour job to cut out a complicated subject like Santa in a sleigh drawn by three reindeer.

His toys fascinate a second generation. When he gave some to a family of three children, the father told Ache: "I still have the birdhouse you made for me when I was a kid." Ache had forgotten it, but the man exhibited the birdhouse as proof.

He delivers toys personally at nearby hospitals, which gives him an opportunity to visit the child patients.

KEEP THE PARTY SMALL

How To Entertain Young Tots During The Holidays

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Thinking of entertaining young tots during the holidays? Then remember a few hints that help when the nursery set goes gala.

1. Keep the party small. Many mothers have found that having as many guests as a child is old is a safe number to have around.

2. Plan activities carefully. Don't wait for last-minute inspirations — you may not have enough of them to keep bouncing youngsters happy and occupied. Small fry enjoy simple singing games such as "London Bridge," "Drop the Handkerchief" and "In and Out the Window."

• • •

YOU'D THINK they would tire of them but they don't!

Treasure Hunts are popular, and you can have wrapped Christmas candy and peanuts for the hidden nuggets.

3. Plan to have a small present that each child will enjoy playing with at the party and then can take home. Inexpensive scrap books and new crayons are a good example of this kind of favor.

4. Keep party fare simple. Asking the children for lunch or supper is a good idea.

For the main dish you might serve chicken timbales made from ground chicken, cream sauce, soft bread crumbs, and a little minced parsley for seasoning; with buttered snap beans cut in 1½-inch pieces for easy eating, and a small bread and butter sandwich.

• • •

A FEW CRISP carrot sticks will add pretty color to the plates. For dessert serve ice cream in little paper cups with tiny sugar cookies.

5. Youngsters love place cards on the party table. One suggestion is to make Chocolate Candy Balls and wrap each in colored cellophane; then attach a namecard for each guest.

ACHE (pronounced "Ah-hee") watches the newspapers for polio cases and the like and never fails to send toys to the young victims. Some of his little friends bring a lump to your throat. There is pitiful little Jimmy, paralyzed, who is 18 but has the body of a six-year-old. Five shelves in the room in which he spends his life are filled with toys made by "Uncle Asher."

Pretty little Linda, blond and curly-haired, blind since her birth three years ago. "I held her for over an hour," Ache tenderly recalled. "She's got a lot of my toys ... she'll feel them all over with her sensitive fingers."

Hundreds visit his rural cottage at Christmastime to watch his strong hands fashion toys out of white pine boards. He is truly one of Santa's workers, working steadily by a coal stove, puffing his pipe, gleaming with anticipation as his kindly blue eyes look outdoors sometimes watching the first snowflakes.

ACHE'S toy idea grew out of a hobby. Talented in drawing, he began painting on wood the familiar characters of comic strips. Now he has over 800 of them, about eight inches high and mounted—a unique collection he values at $20,000.

There's been no stopping him since he thought of making similar toys for kiddies. Frequently his arthritis won't let him sleep long, so he arises after brief naps to bend over his whirring jig saw. He forgets to eat.

"You're happy when you're giving something away," he explains. "If I had a million, I'd give it all away."

He is painstaking. He may do a drawing five times until it suits him. Some toys take 12 hours to cut out. Indeed, it was a 30-hour job to cut out a complicated subject like Santa in a sleigh drawn by three reindeer.

His toys fascinate a second generation. When he gave some to a family of three children, the father told Ache: "I still have the birdhouse you made for me when I was a kid." Ache had forgotten it, but the man exhibited the birdhouse as proof.

He delivers toys personally at nearby hospitals, which gives him an opportunity to visit the child patients.

KEEP THE PARTY SMALL

How To Entertain Young Tots During The Holidays

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Thinking of entertaining young tots during the holidays? Then remember a few hints that help when the nursery set goes gala.

1. Keep the party small. Many mothers have found that having as many guests as a child is old is a safe number to have around.

2. Plan activities carefully. Don't wait for last-minute inspirations — you may not have enough of them to keep bouncing youngsters happy and occupied. Small fry enjoy simple singing games such as "London Bridge," "Drop the Handkerchief" and "In and Out the Window."

• • •

YOU'D THINK they would tire of them but they don't!

Treasure Hunts are popular, and you can have wrapped Christmas candy and peanuts for the hidden nuggets.

3. Plan to have a small present that each child will enjoy playing with at the party and then can take home. Inexpensive scrap books and new crayons are a good example of this kind of favor.

4. Keep party fare simple. Asking the children for lunch or supper is a good idea.

For the main dish you might serve chicken timbales made from ground chicken, cream sauce, soft bread crumbs, and a little minced parsley for seasoning; with buttered snap beans cut in 1½-inch pieces for easy eating, and a small bread and butter sandwich.

• • •

A FEW CRISP carrot sticks will add pretty color to the plates. For dessert serve ice cream in little paper cups with tiny sugar cookies.

5. Youngsters love place cards on the party table. One suggestion is to make Chocolate Candy Balls and wrap each in colored cellophane; then attach a namecard for each guest.

BLOOD PROGRAM APPEAL

Give Christmas Gift To Soldier In Korea

"Give a Christmas gift to a soldier in Korea!"

That is the theme of the Pickaway County Blood program committee for the Dec. 26 visit of the Bloodmobile at the First Methodist church.

Every effort possible is being made to encourage each organization in the county to rally to the definite need for whole blood for this visit, a committee spokesman said.

Appointments for the visit may be made by calling the Red Cross Office, 336, Mrs. Tom Renick, 756, Mrs. Robert Smithers, 380-Y, or the Rev. Robert Weaver, 52.

WHILE APPOINTMENTS are not mandatory they will enable the committee to schedule the flow of donors so that there are not long waits.

The blood which will be collected here on the December visit will be actually on the battle fields of Korea within a week as well as supplement blood demands of local hospitals for Pickaway County residents.

The hours for the Christmas time visit will be 11 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Potential donors are urged to remember that they should not eat fatty foods six hours before giving.

Local doctors and nurses will be in attendance at the Bloodmobile during the day.

Each potential donor will be examined to safe guard some person giving who is not physically able to do so.

'POP' WILL BE FIRST

Christmas Trains Appeal To Boys And 'Dads' Both

It's a safe bet that Pop is going to be the first one playing with that new electric train on Christmas morning.

There's something about a train, say toy salesmen, that has an irresistible appeal for practically all males, especially grown-up ones.

That's why so many fathers rush out to buy an elaborate electric train for junior along with his first trains.

This year's trains hold more thrills than ever for railroad fans young and old.

The toy trains are copied from blueprints of real ones, and will do just about everything a full-scale train will do.

LATEST models puff real smoke, have locomotive whistles and diesel sirens, couple and uncouple automatically.

Among new gadgets to add to the system is an automatic gateman, to warn motorists of approaching trains, a new transformer that operates up to four train sets simultaneously on different tracks, derricks, milk cars and even a new station that announces trains.

So it looks like a merry Christmas for all living room engineers, young and old.

A good-sized circus elephant will eat up to 125 pounds of hay and 25 pounds of bran mash a day.

White Christmas Tough In Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile—(AP)—A white Christmas is going to have tough competition from the local type of Yuletide this year in Santiago.

Plans are under way for a festive celebration in a local park. Stalls sponsored by the Embassies of different countries will bring the traditional Old World touch to an occasion which will take place in mid-Summer heat.

Cotton snow and paper mache reindeer is the best that can be produced.

The traffic through several of the main streets in the downtown area is diverted, and colored lights are strung across the streets from the buildings. Crowds stroll along in the evenings, enjoying a breath of air and prhaps feeling cooler for having seen the shop displays with cotton wool powdered with boracid, and the warm-clad Santa Claus.

Williamsport Yule Party At Pavilion

Williamsport children and grown-ups alike are set for their Christmas treat this year.

The annual community Christmas party will be held at 7:30 p. m. Saturday at the Sulphur Spring pavilion.

A program which will include group singing and music by the Williamsport high school band is scheduled.

Treats of candy, fruit and popcorn will be distributed to Williamsport children by committee members.

IN PAST years, the town's Christmas party has attracted many children and adults.

Treats were packaged Friday afternoon, and plenty will be on hand for everyone, it was announced.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22—(AP)—The Defense Department says all the armed services have met or bettered their schedules for releasing veteran reserves from active duty.

Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg made the report in a letter to Rep. Brooks (D-La), chairman of a House armed services subcommittee dealing with reserve affairs.

CONNECTICUT TOWN PUTS LIE TO COMMUNISTS' PROPAGANDA

Airview of the little town of Lebanon in Connecticut—its happy life makes the Red propaganda masters of the Kremlin squirm.

By CHARLES J. LAZARUS
Central Press Correspondent

LEBANON, Conn. — This rural and unsophisticated dairy town—with its 1,400 population of all races, religions and creeds who are past masters of the trick of getting along with each other—lies quietly, a little more than an hour's drive from the Atlantic ocean and 25 miles southeast of Hartford, the state capital.

Through the 251 years of its history, Lebanon has played its part in the formation of American history, but probably no more or less than the dozens of other hamlets and towns nestling among the hills and valleys of the pastoral New England countryside.

In fact, about the best way to describe Lebanon is to say it is a typical American town whose pleasures and problems are more or less the same as those found anywhere else in the 48 states.

So, it was with considerable surprise that the Lebanese received the news some time ago that they had been picked by the State department to play a guinea pig role in combatting the lies and propaganda from Russia.

Lebanon's function, pure and simple, would be to exemplify democracy in action. To bring the message of how Americans practice the art of tolerance and understanding for each other's needs and wishes, the State department prepared some 500,000 copies of a 24-page pamphlet chockful of pictures and text about Lebanon, for distribution behind the Iron Curtain.

HOW WOULD this literature be spread through to the Soviet satellites and Russia itself? To this question, Michael J. McDermott, State department press officer, replied recently: "If I told you, maybe we couldn't distribute it."

The booklet's pictures and story are, in a sense, a Cook's tour of Lebanon, Conn., with nothing exaggerated. If anything is emphasized, it is the way differences are settled through democratic action in the will of the majority which recognizes the rights of the minority.

For example: the narrative, printed in 18 languages, brings the reader to Lebanon town meetings, social get-togethers and occupations of its citizens. The theme linking the chain of layouts is that of a dispute—the young people of the town want a kindergarten for their children and the elders oppose the idea on the ground that the need is not drastic—and how it is resolved along lines indigenous with a democracy.

The participants in the controversy are brought into focus as a tourist might find them: Mrs. Lund carries water from the well; Mr. Himmelstein is laughing at a joke; the McBride lad is getting a hair cut; Mrs. Geer fusses about her stove.

THE STATE department did not pick Lebanon for its purpose because of any historical importance, but it is readily admitted that the background of its residents—many of whom are descended from the original settlers—has helped the community retain its particular characteristics from a standpoint of democratic heritage.

Many of the headstones in the cemetery carry names of Revolutionary War soldiers and the well-known Lebanon village green—a mile long, 500 feet wide—can boast that it was the camping site for Lafayette and a French detachment for eight months before joining the Continental Army at Yorktown.

The Lebanon Congregational church, founded in 1700, stands just off the green, and the other houses of worship include those of the Baptist, Roman Catholic, Methodist and Jewish faiths. There is also an elementary school.

There are no industrial plants at Lebanon, whose citizens partake in the produce of the herds grazing on nearby hillsides, chickens and vegetables produced locally. The nearest railway is five miles away.

Lebanon for all these years has lived a quiet and simple life. Today, the Red nations are being told that it is this very simplicity and regard for the fellow man, that gives America its strength.

HOLIDAY APPROACHING

Plan Family Activities During Christmas Season

By DAVID TAYLOR MARKE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

With the approach of Christmas your children will be home from school and, together, you will try to find something that truly belongs to this festival time.

A happy holiday is only limited by the amount of ingenuity and imagination of the whole family," says Mrs. Rowena Shoemaker, Assistant Director, Play Schools Association.

"You will have the fun of making gift lists with the children. You will want to provide a variety of social experiences which will stimulate self-expression, self-direction and responsibility of each child in your family circle. Why not make this a time for re-evaluating the activities within the home?"

FOR EXAMPLE, points out Mrs. Shoemaker, "Are your children being exposed to the joys of music?"

Why not get out records which the children may have forgotten and spend the afternoon with the victrola? There's a favorite Christmas poem 'The Night Before Christmas' as told by Milton Cross. On the other side there is a delightful 'Jingle Bells' fantasy. Another favorite with young children is the 'Magic Record'—play it once, then play it again and get an entirely different version of the song you just heard. There is a secret here, of course; the secret depends on where you place the needle.

Other favorites with children are 'The Safety Song,' 'The Gay Explosion Polka,' and 'Santa Claus Is Coming To Town.' Are children interested in the stars? If so, they will like 'By Rocket To The Moon.' This is very good fun as tuneful songs are combined with excellent music," she says.

If you are in the habit of playing "pretend" with your children, there's a grand two-record album called "The Glooby Game," says Mrs. Shoemaker. It's all about Chris, a very imaginative little girl who pretends all sorts of fascinating games with her friends. It has lots of enjoyable songs and gay make-believe.

IF YOU have a television in your home, says the associate director, take time to watch, with your children, some of their favorite programs. Says she:

"This medium has brought the children back to the living room—why not make it the whole family circle? We are prone to criticize the effect of television and radio without knowing about the good programs available and rationing our children as to the time spent watching the TV set.

Why not take some of the holiday time to look over the programs of the week, to make a list of the favorite programs of the children, and some that you would like to see? Talk about them. In this way you are helping the children to discriminate between good and bad programs. We have both and it is up to us as parents to guide and direct."

Also, asks Mrs. Shoemaker, "How about books during the Christmas holiday?" Rediscover some of the old favorites. Start reading new ones. There's "Lucy's Christmas" by Ann Molloy and "The Enchanted Playhouse" by Mabel Hill.

THIS holiday time means long days of doing things together. What about Daddy who will probably be at work? Mother is not a mystery to the children in the home, she says, but a father is often quite a mystery to junior.

The father comes and goes, often early and very often late. Where does he go and what does he do? Far too many mothers and fathers think this is unimportant for a child to know—they never even try to explain.

Mt. Sterling's business district has been decorated with colored lights, and a large Christmas tree with lights has been placed in the center of the village square.

Child Problems and Solutions

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PhD

There are two general groups of children who lag at falling asleep at bedtime: children who don't remain long enough in a horizontal position to feel sleepy, and children who, lying fairly still, just remain awake a long, long while.

A youngster of the former group, if under three or four, may stand up in his crib or climb out of it and run about or even go to where the rest of the family are. Even up to six or later a child may be kept awake thinking of some new way to bring his mother or father to do something for him—get him a drink or cookie, answer a question, give him another kiss or take him to the toilet (his ace card). Thus he may keep himself awake and his parents annoyed and busy for one or several hours, night after night.

If you have this problem, announce to your child casually during the day that as he is getting so big, you are not going to come to him after he goes to bed tonight unless he is in dire need. As you see him off to bed, remind him of the new way. Before leaving him, go through the usual ritual. Then ask him if he can think of anything else he wants. Keep your word. But don't tell him he mustn't call. Just manage yourself.

BUT SUPPOSE he should leave his crib and come to you. Then you would know he is not ready yet for the new way. Tell him you made a mistake and will resume at a later evening. In the meanwhile, educate him by day to reject NO. (My bulletins, "Sleep Problems," and "How to Teach Tot Meaning of NO" may be had in a stamped envelope sent me in care of this paper.)

If you have the slightest suspicion that this child is afraid in the dark, leave his door ajar with a dim light on outside it. Also you might wisely walk by his door occasionally, making reassuring sounds. But don't then minister to any of his whimsical wants. Just ignore them.

A mother writes of her son, ten, that on going into his room an hour or more after he retires, she finds him still awake but lying quietly. As I wrote her, this may be a difficult problem. The fact that she so often checks to find if he has gone to sleep, and her many other expressions by actions or words revealing her anxiety over his not going to sleep promptly, could be a big factor, or the biggest one, indeed. She should avoid talking to him or to others in his presence about the matter.

His emotional health by day should be considered—whether he might have worries and anxieties about school, his playmates, or about his security in the family group. Does he live in a cheery, hopeful, happy, comfortable family atmosphere? Is he exposed to fearful and exciting programs on the air? Perhaps he should be under the care of the family physician.

• • •

FURTHERMORE, some children, highly imaginative and mentally alert, may keep their minds running a long while after going to bed. If possible, they should be protected from so much mental stimulation.

Answering Parents' Questions

Q. Our boy in the first grade dreads to go to school because, we think, he fears other children might hurt him. He never has been good at taking his own part.

A. It might be well to hire a boy of the school several years older than your boy to protect him and to show him how to stand up for himself. Don't urge your boy to try to defend himself against boys stronger than he is. Encourage him to play at home with other boys of his age and praise him when he evinces some spunk at self-defense.

Q. When a child is learning to spell five words, say, is it better for him to study each word once and then go to the next, or to stick to one word at a time until its spelling is mastered before going to the next word?

A. The latter, by all means.

A vastly increased demand for cobalt has resulted from its use in jet engines.

Christmas SHOPPING

for Him-Her-Sister-Brother-Dad and Mother

AN AUTOMATIC De-Frost would make an ideal Christmas gift for any busy housewife. It eliminates the defrosting nuisance. Foods stay fresh longer. It will fit any electric refrigerator and sells for only $10.95 at Pettit's.

MOTHER would appreciate a gift for her home—get her a new lamp—a table lamp for the living room—she will relegate the older one to another room—or perhaps she would like a new floor lamp—or a set of lamps for her dresser—or a reading lamp for the den—whatever her wishes, you will find just the right lamp at Mason Furniture, and priced right too.

A GIFT FOR the semi-invalid—a quart of Duffy's Tavern Rock 'n Rye—nutritional and the alcoholic content is practically nil, yet the flavor is pleasing. At Son's Grill—just $2.58.

FOR THAT baby next door or the one whose mother has been so kind and you wish to remember in a not too formal way—get a baby cup, in plated silver; they are priced from $1.75 up at L. M. Butch Co., Jewelers.

SELECT HIS GIFT from among these suggestions—Arrow Shirts; Stetson Hats; Interwoven socks; Cresco Jackets; Glover Sportswear; Pendelton and Botany Wool Shirts; Lamb Knit Sweater—you will find them where he would buy them for himself at Caddy Miller Hat Shop.

DOES MOTHER have a set of Warwick China, and are some of the pieces missing or marred—replace them as a practical and appreciative gift this Christmas—MiLady's Beauty and Gift Shop.

SHE MAY GROW into a secretary or he might be a business executive so give them a play desk with a chair and start them off on their careers. Youngsters of today will love the small desks and chairs that C. J. Schneider Furniture store is showing for Christmas giving. They are all sturdy and exceptionally well-made. All priced within reach of the most conservative buyer.

JEWELRY RATES tops as the Christmas present deluxe especially for the femmes—practically every young girl loves to have loads of it—give her bracelets. In costume jewelry at L. M. Butch Company, Jewelers they are priced as low as $1.25. The gold filled and silver bracelets start at $4.25.

SMOKERS ARE always welcome gifts for the men of the family—especially if they are the kind that they can tote around where they wish to use them. Make his gift this Christmas—a smoker. Before you select it, however, see the line of smokers at Mason Furniture.

A DRILL press would make an excellent Christmas present for the man of the family. Every man has a liking to create things—give him a drill press so that his creations may be helpful as well as entertaining. Many a hobby has turned out to be a very paying proposition. Harpster and Yost.

IF YOU ARE planning to get an electric train for a Christmas gift for Junior we suggest that you drop into Hoover Music Store and invest in a ship model or airplane model, for his dad. That is if you wish Junior to enjoy the train. And don't think his dad would not enjoy the model kits. All the parts are molded to shape and are so easily assembled. A really delightful gift even if you don't get the electric train.

IF YOUR CHRISTMAS giving this year must be practical select a gift that will be lasting—A Tappan Range (bottle gas) for the woman who lives in the suburbs—a Nesco electric roaster would make any woman happy wherever she lives — a Blackstone Washer is a boon to any meticulous housewife and you may select any or all of these articles at Hoover Music Store.

WELL-DRESSED MEN of today buy Hickok belts and suspenders; Alligator top-coats; Merit and Curlee suits and Top-coats, Cooper (jockey) underwear from Caddy Miller Hat shop. GIVE THE CHILDREN toys. You will find the largest selection of children's toys in Circleville at Harpster & Yost Hardware. All priced within the reach of the most conservative buyer—talking toys for the play-pen set priced under $1; cuddly bears and other plush toys, washable plastic animal toys, music boxes, blocks, tool boxes, dolls of all sizes and descriptions, toy furniture and many, many more.

IF YOU REALLY wish to please any mother or housewife — give her Christmas gifts for the home—occasional tables — she never has too many. A new cocktail table, a drum table or perhaps two step-end tables for either end of the davenport, maybe a lamp table with a shelf or a two-drawer commode for the bedroom. When buying tables make certain they are Mersman the biggest name in tables. Remember tables are the costume jewelry of the home. Mason Furniture.

FOR JUNIOR'S gift to dad or his big brother a key-ring would be perfect. At L. M. Butch Company, Jewelers, the key chains start at $2.50 each and they are the kind that would be thoroughly appreciated.

Made of beautiful copper-clad stainless steel, it is quick-heating and a lifetime utensil. You may get a set or just a separate piece. She would also enjoy having a utensil rack on which to display this beautiful ware. Stop in at Harpster and Yost and select mother's gift of Revere Ware today.

Christmas SHOPPING

for Him-Her-Sister-Brother-Dad and Mother

AN AUTOMATIC De-Frost would make an ideal Christmas gift for any busy housewife. It eliminates the defrosting nuisance. Foods stay fresh longer. It will fit any electric refrigerator and sells for only $10.95 at Pettit's.

MOTHER would appreciate a gift for her home—get her a new lamp—a table lamp for the living room—she will relegate the older one to another room—or perhaps she would like a new floor lamp —or a set of lamps for her dresser—or a reading lamp for the den—whatever her wishes, you will find just the right lamp at Mason Furniture, and priced right too.

A GIFT FOR the semi-invalid—a quart of Duffy's Tavern Rock 'n Rye—nutritional and the alcoholic content is practically nil, yet the flavor is pleasing. At Son's Grill—just $2.58.

FOR THAT baby next door or the one whose mother has been so kind and you wish to remember in a not too formal way—get a baby cup, in plated silver; they are priced from $1.75 up at L. M. Butch Co., Jewelers.

SELECT HIS GIFT from among these suggestions—Arrow Shirts; Stetson Hats; Interwoven socks; Cresco Jackets; Glover Sportswear; Pendelton and Botany Wool Shirts; Lamb Knit Sweater—you will find them where he would buy them for himself at Caddy Miller Hat Shop.

DOES MOTHER have a set of Warwick China, and are some of the pieces missing or marred—replace them as a practical and appreciative gift this Christmas—MiLady's Beauty and Gift Shop.

SHE MAY GROW into a secretary or he might be a business executive so give them a play desk with a chair and start them off on their careers. Youngsters of today will love the small desks and chairs that C. J. Schneider Furniture store is showing for Christmas giving. They are all sturdy and exceptionally well-made. SMOKERS ARE always welcome gifts for the men of the family—especially if they are the kind that they can tote around where they wish to use them. Make his gift this Christmas—a smoker. Before you select it, however, see the line of smokers at Mason Furniture.

A DRILL press would make an excellent Christmas present for the man of the family. Every man has a liking to create things—give him a drill press so that his creations may be helpful as well as entertaining. Many a hobby has turned out to be a very paying proposition. Harpster and Yost.

IF YOU ARE planning to get an electric train for a Christmas gift for Junior we suggest that you drop into Hoover Music Store and invest in a ship model or airplane model, for his dad. That is if you wish Junior to enjoy the train. And don't think his dad would not enjoy the model kits. All the parts are molded to shape and are so easily assembled. A really delightful gift even if you don't get the electric train.

IF YOUR CHRISTMAS giving this year must be practical select a gift that will be lasting—A Tappan Range (bottle gas) for the woman who lives in the suburbs —a Nesco electric roaster would make any woman happy wherever she lives — a Blackstone Washer is a boon to any meticulous housewife and you may select any or all of these articles at Hoover Music Store.

Lad, 17, Chalks His 300th Win

MIAMI, Dec. 22 — (AP)—Jockey Charlie Burr, the 17-year-old lad from Kansas, was proud and happy about riding 300 winning horses in a year.

There was little to indicate that the slender, dark-haired youth had just become the seventh jockey in American turf history to score 300 or more victories in 12 months.

The little Kansan—he weighs just 100 pounds — won the eighth race aboard J. Stelle's Four Notrump, a 14-1 long shot, at Tropical Park Friday.

Monroe Rallies To Score 50-47 Win Over Darby

Monroe Indian basketeers jumped into the driver's seat in the Pickaway County basketball league championship race Friday night.

The Monroe team took over the league lead Friday when it handed invading Darby Trojan cagers a 50-47 defeat in the season's top game to date.

Both teams sported undefeated records going into the feature contest, Monroe with seven victories including four league wins; and Darby with nine victories including four league wins.

Darby held the advantage over the Monroe crew during the first three quarters of the game, posting a 15-14 lead in the first frame, swelling the lead to 31-22 at the half and sporting a 38-35 margin going into the final stanza.

MONROE'S Indians rallied in the final stanza of the featured contest, however, battling up even with the invaders and then shooting into a one-point lead.

Junior Beall clinched the victory for the title-bound Indians in the last 10 seconds of play when, disregarding the groans and shouted words or advice from Monroe fans, he bucketed a one-hand push shot to give the Indians its three-point margin.

George Kerns had a field day for Monroe in the contest, bucketing 20 points for the evening to win game scoring honors. Big Jim Grabill posted 12 points to pace Darby, while high-scoring Bob Downs was held to only nine points during the test.

Box score of the contest follows:

Darby	G	F	T
Kennard	1	2	4
McPherson	4	3	11
Grabill	6	0	12
Drummond	1	1	3
Downs	3	3	9
Borror	0	5	5

Totals	21	8	50

Score by Quarters:	1	2	3	Total

Referees—Sheetz and Hemmelgarn.
Reserve game—Darby, 33; Monroe, 32.

3 Games Delayed By Foul Weather

Another trio of basketball games involving Pickaway County teams was postponed Friday night because of bad weather.

Postponed were contests between Atlanta and Scioto; New Holland and Saltcreek; and Williamsport and Madison Mills.

The delayed contests are to be made up following the Christmas vacations.

Holiday Treat Slated For Fans Here Next Week

Circleville basketball fans will be in for a holiday treat next Thursday and Friday nights.

The Circleville Tiger basketball team will play host on those two nights to a holiday carnival, featuring two games each night.

CHS cagers are to be hosts to Holy Rosary of Columbus, Hamilton Township and Ironton in the carnival.

Holy Rosary will be Circleville's opponent in the opening contest of the event, slated for 7:30 p. m. Thursday. Ironton and Hamilton Township will clash in the second tilt at 8:30 p. m.

Friday's schedule calls for the losers of the opening night games to meet in the preliminary contest at 7:30 p. m., while the winners will battle for the mythical carnival championship at 8:30 p. m.

All of the contests are to be played in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum, which will be the site of the annual county tournament in just a few weeks.

Stranahan Ill

MIAMI, Dec. 22 — (AP)—Frank Stranahan of Toledo, one of the nation's best known amateur golfers, was reported in good condition after an emergency appendectomy Friday in St. Francis hospital.

Sokolsky's

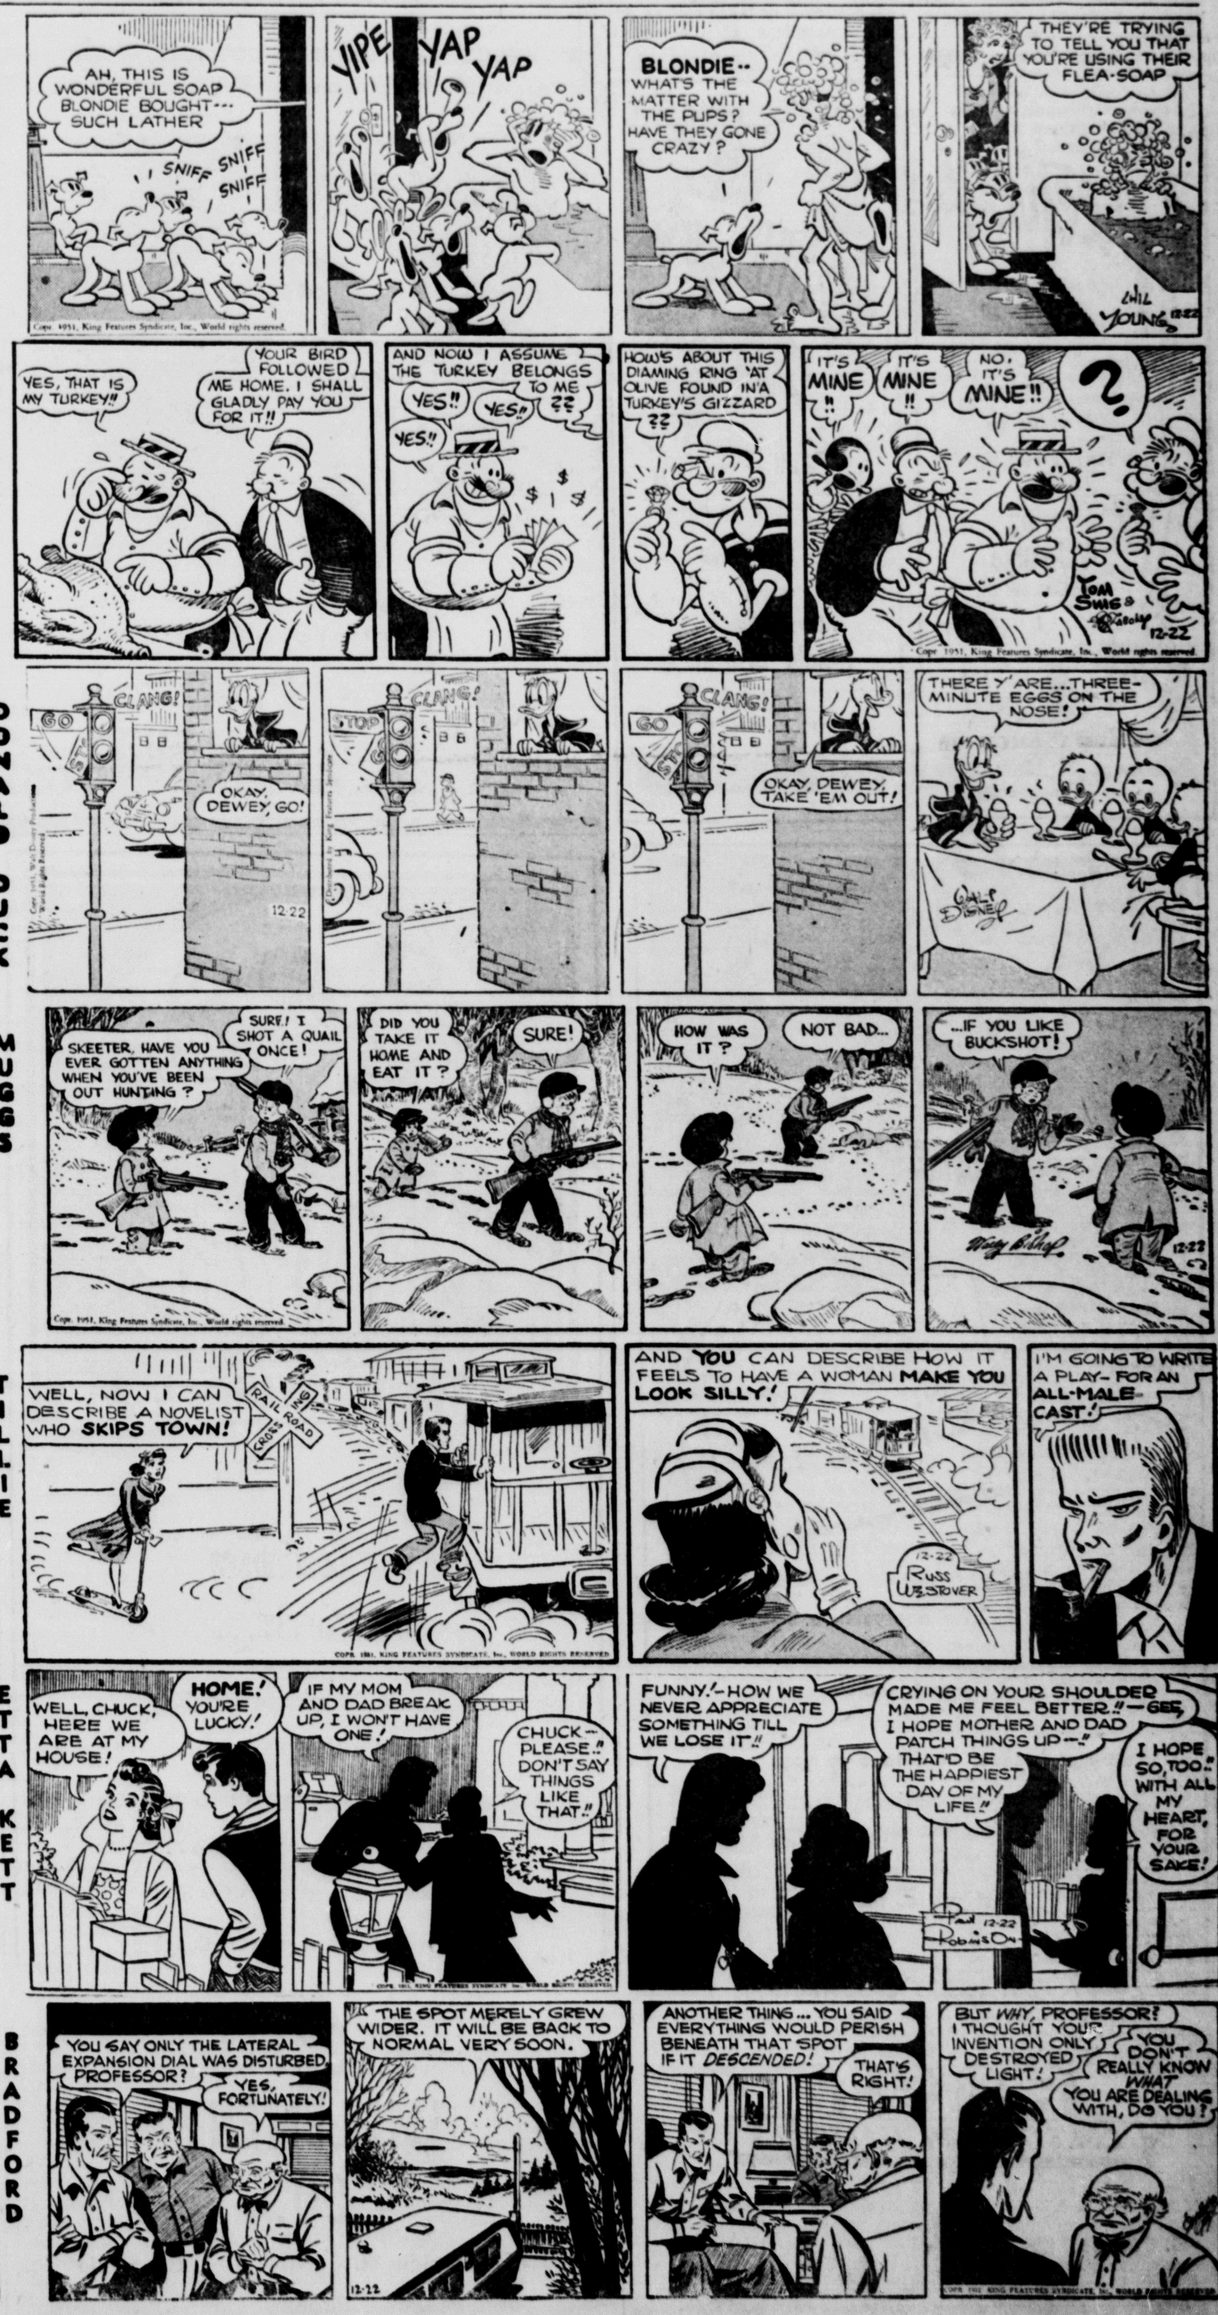
We who were not Roman Catholics wondered at the auspieces under which we met. For it has been said that Catholics are themselves bigoted and intellectually monopolistic. Yet, here was utter and complete intellectual freedom. No one was constrained to give the host the last word; in fact, the very last words spoken were mine, a Jew and the son of a Rabbi.

We speak often of inter-faith movements and the necessity of wider tolerance. Here for three days men of the greatest divergence in thought and tradition ate and slept, lectured and argued under one roof and that roof was dedicated to "Our Lady" — Notre Dame.

And there was no question of tolerance, which has in it an element of snobbery and forbearance. It was an atmosphere of equality, of freedom to speak of the truth as each sees the truth. And when it was over, it was evident that men of good-will can and do search for love and decency and faith—on many different roads.



Red Grange Ill

CHICAGO, Dec. 22—(AP)—The condition of Red Grange, one of football's all-time greats, was reported as "good" Friday by attending physicians in a hospital. Grange suffered pneumonia with complications.

This sentiment we pass on to you is always good and always true:
we take this opportunity to say,
"Best Wishes for Your Holiday" . . .

Lad, 17, Chalks His 300th Win

MIAMI, Dec. 22 — (AP)—Jockey Charlie Burr, the 17-year-old lad from Kansas, was proud and happy about riding 300 winning horses in a year.

There was little to indicate that the slender, dark-haired youth had just become the seventh jockey in American turf history to score 300 or more victories in 12 months.

The little Kansan—he weighs just 100 pounds — won the eighth race aboard J. Stelle's Four Notrump, a 14-1 long shot, at Tropical Park Friday.

Monroe Rallies To Score 50-47 Win Over Darby

Monroe Indian basketeers jumped into the driver's seat in the Pickaway County basketball league championship race Friday night.

The Monroe team took over the league lead Friday when it handed invading Darby Trojan cagers a 50-47 defeat in the season's top game to date.

Both teams sported undefeated records going into the feature contest, Monroe with seven victories including four league wins; and Darby with nine victories including four league wins.

Darby held the advantage over the Monroe crew during the first three quarters of the game, posting a 15-14 lead in the first frame, swelling the lead to 31-22 at the half and sporting a 38-35 margin going into the final stanza.

MONROE'S Indians rallied in the final stanza of the featured contest, however, battling up even with the invaders and then shooting into a one-point lead.

Junior Beall clinched the victory for the title-bound Indians in the last 10 seconds of play when, disregarding the groans and shouted words or advice from Monroe fans, he bucketed a one-hand push shot to give the Indians its three-point margin.

George Kerns had a field day for Monroe in the contest, bucketing 20 points for the evening to win game scoring honors. Big Jim Grabill posted 12 points to pace Darby, while high-scoring Bob Downs was held to only nine points during the test.

Box score of the contest follows:

Darby	G	F	T
Kennard	1	2	4
McPherson	4	3	11
Grabill	6	0	12

3 Games Delayed By Foul Weather

Another trio of basketball games involving Pickaway County teams was postponed Friday night because of bad weather.

Postponed were contests between Atlanta and Scioto; New Holland and Saltcreek; and Williamsport and Madison Mills.

The delayed contests are to be made up following the Christmas vacations.

Holiday Treat Slated For Fans Here Next Week

Circleville basketball fans will be in for a holiday treat next Thursday and Friday nights.

The Circleville Tiger basketball team will play host on those two nights to a holiday carnival, featuring two games each night.

CHS cagers are to be hosts to Holy Rosary of Columbus, Hamilton Township and Ironton in the carnival.

Holy Rosary will be Circleville's opponent in the opening contest of the event, slated for 7:30 p. m. Thursday. Ironton and Hamilton Township will clash in the second tilt at 8:30 p. m.

Friday's schedule calls for the losers of the opening night games to meet in the preliminary contest at 7:30 p. m., while the winners will battle for the mythical carnival championship at 8:30 p. m.

All of the contests are to be played in Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum, which will be the site of the annual county tournament in just a few weeks.

Sokolsky's

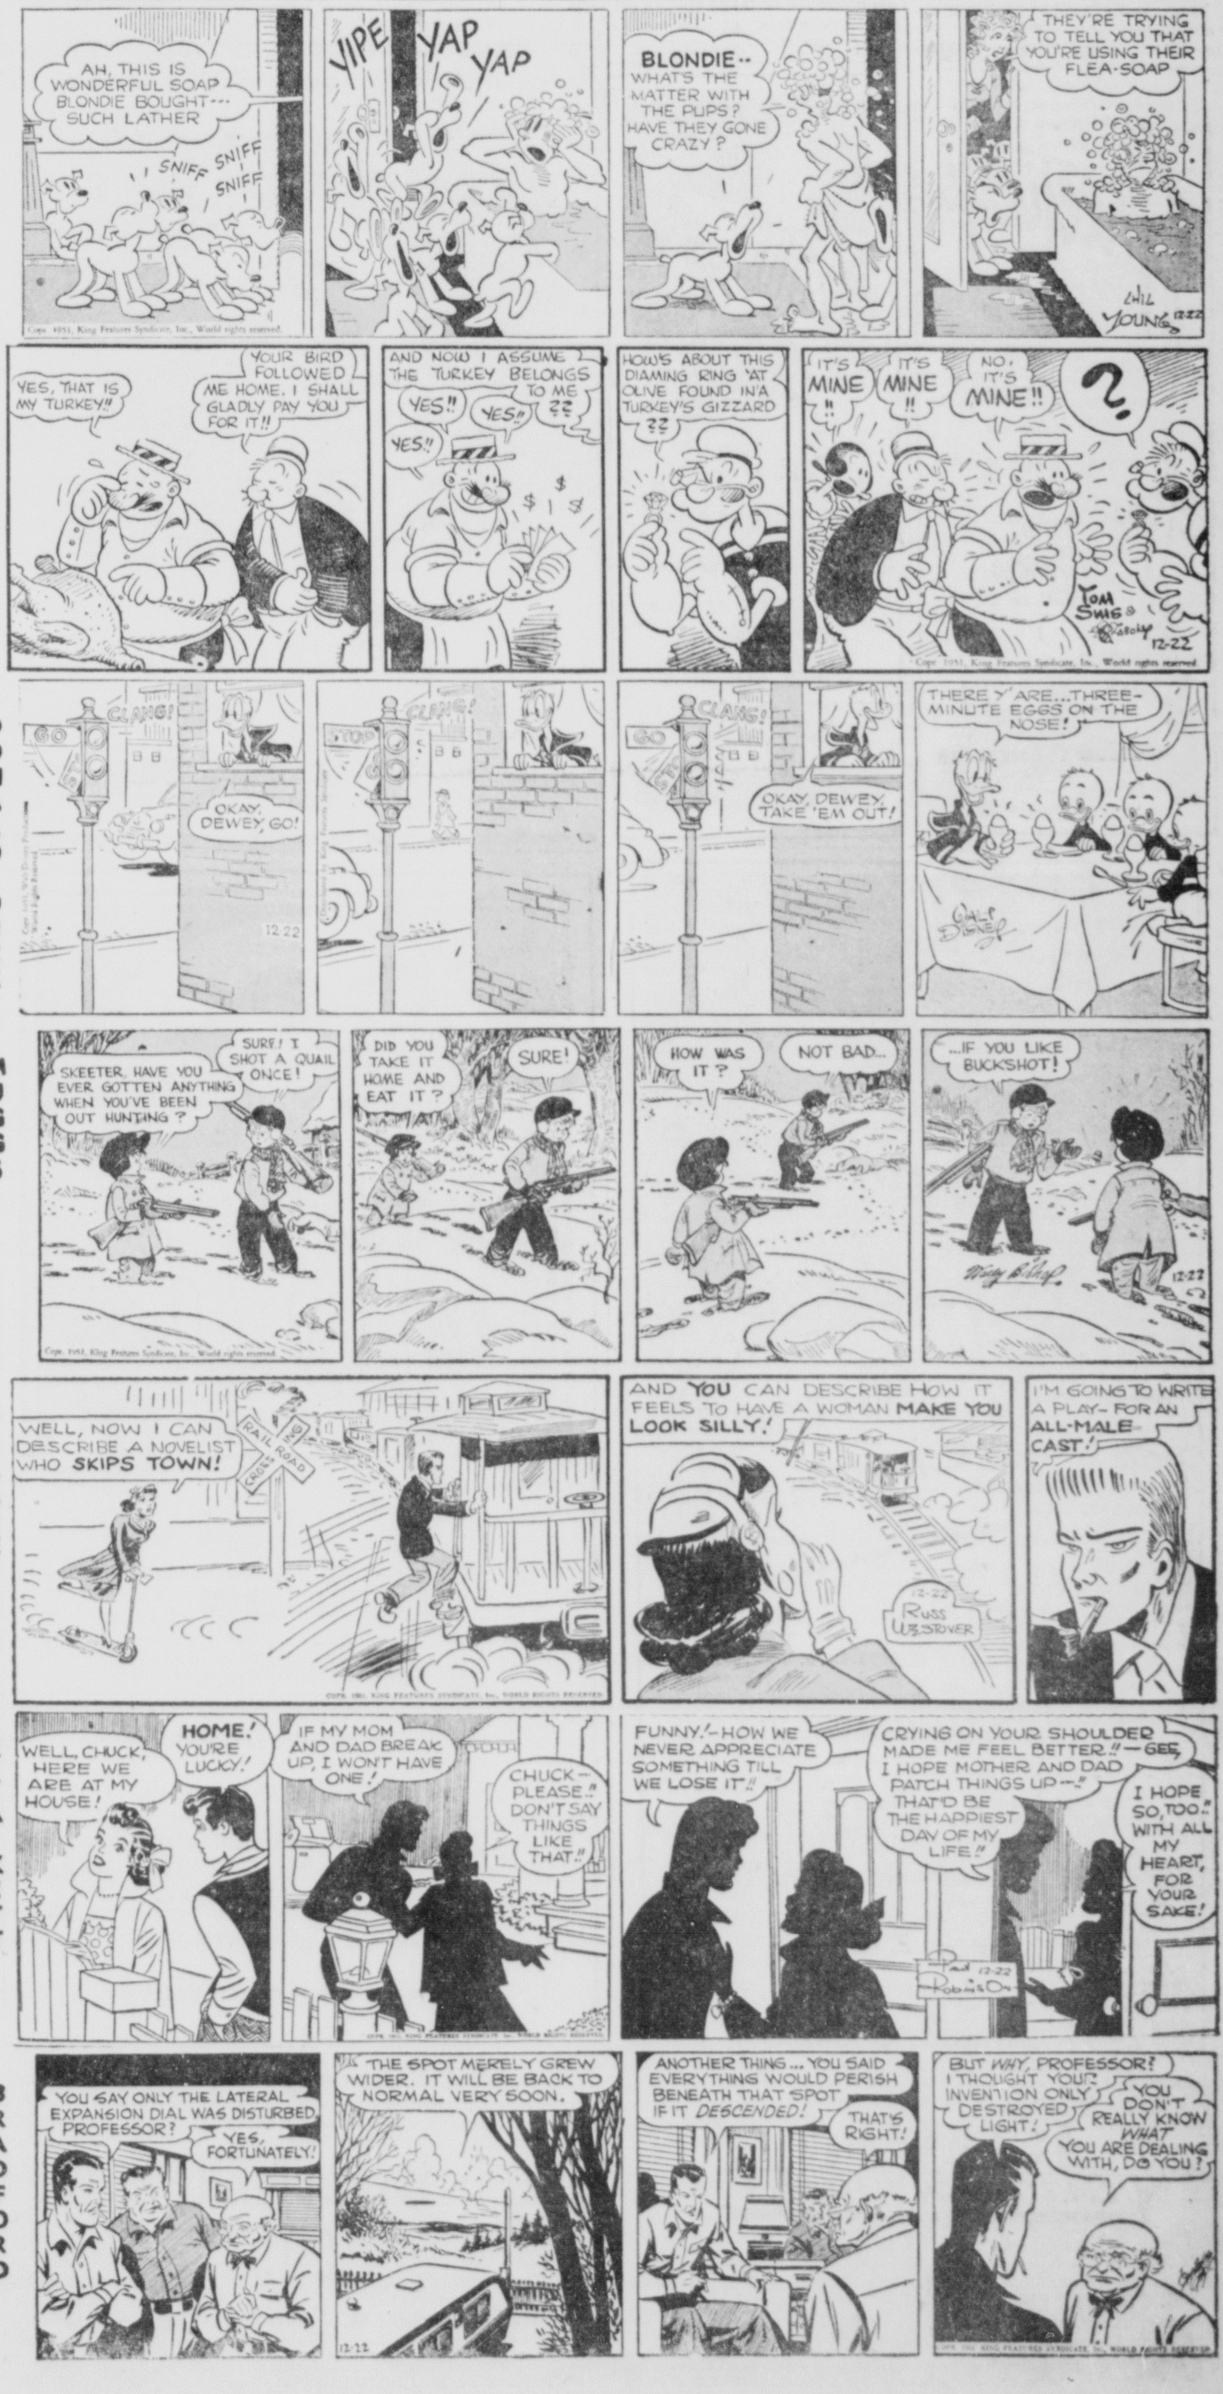
We who were not Roman Catholics wondered at the auspieces under which we met. For it has been said that Catholics are themselves bigoted and intellectually monopolistic. Yet, here was utter and complete intellectual freedom. No one was constrained to give the host the last word; in fact, the very last words spoken were mine, a Jew and the son of a Rabbi.

We speak often of inter-faith movements and the necessity of wider tolerance. Here for three days men of the greatest divergence in thought and tradition ate and slept, lectured and argued under one roof and that roof was dedicated to "Our Lady" — Notre Dame.

And there was no question of tolerance, which has in it an element of snobbery and forbearance. It was an atmosphere of equality, of freedom to speak of the truth as each sees the truth. And when it was over, it was evident that men of good-will can and do search for love and decency and faith—on many different roads.



DANGEROUS IN WINTER, TOO

Swine Erysipelas Poses Threat To Pork Profits

Farmers were warned today that swine erysipelas, one of our most dangerous warm weather hog diseases, now poses a growing threat to wintertime pork profits.

Erysipelas is appearing almost as frequently in cold weather as during the summer months, the American Foundation for Animal Health reported Friday.

"Veterinarians say it is commonplace to find erysipelas in 200 pound breeding gilts in the middle of January," the report states. "One reason is that the causative germs can live indefinitely in hog lots. Another reason is that the farmer may have chronic carriers in his drove and not know it."

* * *

WARNING that erysipelas is a bad crippler and killer, the Foundation said that if symptoms appear in unvaccinated herds, the owner should obtain a correct diagnosis immediately to help avoid losses.

"Erysipelas is easily confused with hog cholera, enteritis, pig typhoid or streptococcic infections," says the Foundation. "Symptoms may include lameness, arched backs, loss of weight, and skin discoloration.

Death losses in unvaccinated herds may run 50 percent or higher. Recovered pigs with large joints may be condemned or docked in price when shipped to market.

"Once the trouble has been identified as erysipelas, healthy hogs should be moved away from the sick ones. Dead pigs should be burned or buried. Rubber gloves should be used when handling infected pigs as the disease can also cause a painful human skin infection called erysipeloid."

Airliner Crashes

NEWHALL, Calif., Dec. 22—(AP)—The Newhall sheriff's office reported Friday that a DC-6 airliner had crashed on Frazier Mountain, in the rugged range which divides Southern California and the San Joaquin Valley. There were no immediate reports of casualties or other details.

Eighty-five per cent of Berlin's production facilities were dispersed, destroyed or taken east as Russian reparations at the end of World War II.

Veterinarians To Attend State Meeting

Six Circleville and Pickaway County veterinarians are expected to attend the 68th annual meeting of the Ohio State Veterinary Medical association in Columbus Jan. 2-4.

Dr. J. G. Hardenburgh of Chicago, executive secretary of the American Veterinary Medical association will be featured speaker.

Local veterinarians planning to attend are Dr. E. W. Hedges and Dr. W. M. Wilson, both of Circleville; Dr. C. W. Cromley and Dr. J. L. Spindler, both of Ashville, Dr. P. E. Fenstermaker, of Williamsport and Dr. L. M. Tarbill of New Holland.

A full program of entertainment for wives who accompany their husbands to the convention has been planned, including a card party, luncheon and annual dinner dance.

All sessions will be held in the Deshler-Wallick hotel. About 500 veterinarians are expected to attend.

The speaker, Dr. Hardenburgh, recently returned from South America where he attended the Pan American Veterinary conference and visited veterinary colleges throughout the continent. He will show movies of the trip.

Important discussions will center about how to improve and conserve the nation's food supply through prevention and treatment of disease and how to cooperate in Civil Defense plans in Ohio.

For the Sudanese people as well as the Egyptians, the Nile River is the center of life and prosperity.
